

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at <http://books.google.com/>

FACTORY AND STORE:

NOS. 58 & 60 UNIVERSITY PLACE,
NEW YORK.

ESTABLISHED 1856.

ELEVEN PACKS OF EXTRA WHITE VISITING CARDS, 50 in each pack, eleven names, printed from nickel silver, to agents, $1 00. No order for less than $1 00 taken at this rate. Single order, 65 cards, including 15 high-priced samples, glass, snowflake, marble, etc., 25c. and 3c. stamp. These last seem to meet with more favor than anything else ever offered to the public.

Though my prices are low, I warrant the cards as good as many that are often sold at retail for four times the price, and if the order is correct and plain, if they do not suit in every particular, I will refund the money when the cards are returned to me, or refill the order. I think my agents have the best chance in the country. Printers in every direction are sending me their orders, and even here in Boston one advertiser recently brought me a large number of orders to print, on which, of course, he was to make his own commission, and I have contracted to do the work for another party in this city in the same way.

I have more than 100 styles of type for this work alone and 150 styles of cards—250 styles in all—the largest assortment in the world, probably; have nearly 60 employees—some of the most expert printers in the country, and shall soon have as many more, with facilities for printing six millions of cards per month, if good work, fairness, and promptness will furnish me with orders to demand it—and the prospect is good! Many think the cards must be worthless at so low a price, but change their minds when once they see them. I throw away bushels of printed cards which most parties would say are good enough. I could fill volumes with compliments which I have received. “Never was so well suited before,” “Don’t give the agency to any one else,” “Cheapest and best we ever saw,” and like expressions come with almost every mail. One says, “I know about fifty places to get cards, and like yours the best.” One lady said with astonishment, “Why, these are NICE cards, I never thought of patronizing Mr. Cannon’s cheap concern.”

I do not wish to build up my business by false representations; and only ask my patrons to compare my work with others, and see if what I say is not so.

I would rather receive 200 orders and make $1 00 on them, giving employment to 100 printers, doing all my orders the day I get them, my agents receiving the benefit of my low prices, than get but 10 orders during the same time, with 50 cents profit on them, charging agents more, keeping but four or five hands at work, necessarily causing long delays in filling orders.

Remember, the cards will be sent by return mail, and the money refunded if the cards do not suit, if the order is plain. Circulars, price lists, etc., sent for 10 cents. Send no pennies nor 5 cent nickel pieces. W. C. CANNON, 46 Kneeland St., 712 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

WASHINGTON WHEN HE TOOK COMMAND OF THE ARMY.

A GREAT CONVENIENCE!

It is a very common thing for a lady to say, when she has been well fitted to a pair of Boots or Shoes.

"I WISH YOU WOULD KEEP MY SIZE."

That request could be very easily er's name was stamped upon the but by the customer herself. Every FIRST CLASS GOODS
toms know how they may be the same size that fits the foot at complied with if the manufactur-goods. not only by the salesman dealer in Boots and Shoes of the should be willing to let his cus-fitted the next time with exactly first.

NO TWO MANUFACTURER'S BOOTS OR SHOES ARE ALIKE,

if the marks for the size be the same; every manufacturer has his own whims about his lasts. It has been the intention of the subscriber to conform to the

FRENCH STYLE

of Boots and Shoes, from his first start in business, and the goods have always commanded a higher price than any other Boots or Shoes in the market.

The great thing about a Boot or Shoe is to have it fit well and feel like an old Boot or Shoe. Goods of this kind will not stretch out of shape; the difference in the price is not to be thought of when the comfort and durability are taken into account.

A GREAT IMPROVEMENT

has been made in the goods the last six months.

There are many retail dealers who, in consequence of the representations of certain manufacturers, tell their customers,

"WE DO NOT KEEP THE KIMBALL BOOT, BUT WE HAVE SOME THAT ARE MADE ON THE KIMBALL LAST."

In answer to this, I hereby inform the consumers, as well as the dealer, that the

"KIMBALL LAST,"

with its various improvements, is used in my factory ONLY, and not elsewhere in the United States.

MRS. CYRENE SMITH'S

ABDOMINAL SUPPORTER.

This Supporter is especially adapted to the treatment of the various Displacements of the Uterus, and a Relapsed state of the Abdominal Parts.

The most simple and practical of any ever invented. It supports the abdomen, and causes the womb and other organs to assume their natural positions. They are easily adjusted, and so comfortable to the wearer, that patients say they feel better upon having a supporter applied. Very fleshy persons have found this supporter to be just what they need. It has been very successfully used in cases of rupture, by both males and females.

Patented, April 29, Improved, 1869.

Ladies will find great comfort in wearing them

BEFORE AND AFTER CONFINEMENT,

And will be able to take long walks and not be fatigued, as they would be without it. SS In case of soreness, the pad may be left off a few days. In case of Pregnancy, or very large Abdomen, order No. 2.

THEY ARE LIGHT AND COOL, AND WILL WASH.

Refers by permission to the following gentlemen: Prof. H. Miller, M.D., Prof. J. A. Ireland, M.D., E. D. Force, M.D., L. P. Yandell, Sr., M.D.

March 8.—Stamp act passed, which declared that no legal instrument of writing should be valid unless it bore a British stamp. The feelings of the people were so intense against this act, that in several cities mobs and violence ensued. The stamps were seized and burned, and the distributors, who were appointed by the Crown to sell them, were insulted and despised on the street, and, when the law was to take effect, there were no officials with courage enough to enforce it.

1766.

March 18.—Stamp act repealed. In London this was an occasion of great rejoicing; and in America bonfires and illuminations attested the feelings of the masses of the people.

June.—Mutiny act. British troops sent to America, and an act passed by Parliament providing for their partial subsistence on the colonies. The appearance of these troops in New York, and the order to feed and shelter them, occasioned violent outbreaks of the people in that city, and burning indignation all over the land.

June 29.—A tax imposed upon tea, glass, paper, painters' colors, etc., and a bill passed forbidding the New York Assembly to legislate until it should comply with the mutiny act of 1766. The people boldly resisted these acts of oppression. Circulars were issued to the Assemblies from Massachusetts asking their co-operation in obtaining a redress of grievances. The Governor of Massachusetts, in the king's name, was instructed to command the Assembly to rescind its actions, but in June, 1768, it unanimously voted not to rescind.

Jan. 20.—Petition of the Massachusetts Assembly to the King of England, against the late tax on trade in the American colonies.

First Methodist church in America built in New York.

May.—Commissioners of Customs, to collect duties, arrive in Boston. They are regarded with much contempt, and it was difficult to restrain the excitable portion of the population from committing personal violence.

June.—Arrival of sloop Liberty, at Boston, belonging to John Hancock (one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence), with a cargo of Madeira wine.

The Commissioners demanded duties. It was refused, and they seized the vessel. The news spread over Boston, and the people resolved on resistance. The Commissioners were assailed by a mob, their houses damaged; and they were obliged to seek safety in Castle William, a small fortress about 3 miles S. E. from Boston.

Sept. 27.—British troops land in Boston, 700 strong, and with drums beating and colors flying, they marched to the Common.

Jan. 26.—British Parliament passes a bill requiring the arrest of offenders against the government to be sent to England for trial.

Dartmouth College, New Hampshire, received its charter. It was named from the Earl of Dartmouth, its benefactor.

American Philosophical Society, at Philadelphia, founded.

March 5.—Boston Massacre. A rope-maker quarreled with a soldier (March 2), and struck him. From this a fight ensued between several soldiers and rope-makers, in which the latter were beaten. A few evenings afterward (March 5), about 700 excited inhabitants assembled in the streets for the purpose of attacking the soldiers. A sentinel was attacked near the Custom House, when Captain Preston, commander of the guard, went to his rescue, with eight armed men, irritated and assailed by the mob, the soldiers fired upon the citizens, killed three and dangerously wounded five. The mob instantly retreated, when all the bells of the city rang an alarm, and in less than an hour several thousand exasperated citizens were on the streets. Gov. Hutchinson assured the people that justice would be done in the morning, and thus prevented further bloodshed. Capt. Preston and six of his men were tried and acquitted by a Boston jury. Two other soldiers were found guilty of manslaughter, and the troops were removed to Castle William.

April 12.—All duties except on tea repealed.

Sept. 30.—George Whitefield, founder of the Calvinistic Methodists, died, aged 56 years.

Regulators formed in North Carolina to resist British taxation and oppression. In 1768 the people of North Carolina were taxed $75,000 by Gov. Tryon to build him a house at Newbern.

May 16.—The Regulators subdued and dispersed by Gov. Tryon, after hanging six of the leaders.

June 9.—Destruction of the British armed schooner Gaspe. This vessel was stationed in Narragansett Bay to assist the Commissioners of Customs to enforce the revenue laws. The commander insisted that American navigators should lower their colors when they passed his vessel, in token of obedience, and, for refusing, a Providence schooner was chased until she grounded on a low sandy point; and on the same night 64 armed men went down from Providence in boats, captured the people on board the Gaspe and burned the vessel.

Dec. 16.—Tea thrown overboard in Boston harbor. It was a cold night and the citizens were just returning from several spirited meetings held at Faneuil Hall, when a party of about sixty persons, some disguised as Indians, boarded two vessels in the harbor, tore open the hatches, and, in the course of two hours, 342 chests of tea were broken open, and their contents cast into the water. Daniel Boone settles in Kentucky.

1774.

March 7.—Boston port bill passed, ordering the port of Boston to be closed against all commercial transactions whatever, and the removal of the Custom House, Courts of Justice, and other public offices to Salem.

March 28.—A bill passed Parliament empowering Sheriffs appointed by the Crown, to select juries instead of leaving the power with the people. It prohibited all town meetings and other gatherings. It provided for the appointment of the councils, judges, justices of the peace, etc., by the Crown or its Representatives.

April.—Tea thrown overboard in New York harbor.

Sept. 5.—First Continental Congress assembled in Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia, and all the States were represented except Georgia.

Dec. 25.—British tea ship forbidden to land at Philadelphia. The Shakers first arrived from England; they settled near Albany, N. Y.

April 19.—Battle of Lexington. Major Pitcairn, in command of 800 British troops, was sent by Gen. Gage to destroy some ammunition and stores at Concord, but when he reached Lexington, a few miles from Concord, he was met by 80 determined minute men. Pitcairn rode forth and shouted: "Disperse! disperse, you rebels! Down with your arms and disperse!" They refused to obey, and he ordered his men to fire, killing eight citizens and wounding several. This was the first blood of the Revolution. The British then pushed on and destroyed the stores at Concord; but they were so harassed and annoyed by the minute men on their way that by the time they returned back to Bunker Hill they had lost in killed and wounded 273 men.

May 10.—Capture of Ticonderoga. Col's. Ethan Allen and Benedict Arnold with a small company of volunteers, surprised this fortress. As Allen rushed into the rally-port, a sentinel snapped his gun at him and fled. Making his way to the commander's quarters, in a voice of thunder ordered him to surrender. "By whose authority?" exclaimed the officer.

"In the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress!" shouted Allen. No resistance was attempted. Large stores of cannon and ammunition were captured by the Americans, without the loss of a single man.

May.—First Declaration of Independence. The people of North Carolina assembled in convention at Charlotte, and by a series of resolutions absolved their allegiance from the British Crown, organized a local government and made provisions for military defence, virtually declaring themselves free and independent. This declaration of independence was made about 13 months previous to the general declaration made by the Continental Congress.

June 15.—George Washington appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Continental army, and took personal command at Cambridge, Mass., on the 3d of July.

June 17.—Battle of Bunker Hill. Generals Howe and Pigot, in command of 3,000 British troops, assisted by a heavy fire from ships of war, and a battery on Copp's Hill, attacked the redoubt at the foot of Breed's Hill, where lay 1,500 Americans awaiting their approach. Gen. Prescott ordered his men to aim at the waistband of the British and to pick off their officers, whose fine clothes would distinguish them; and when the British column was within ten rods of the redoubt he shouted FIRE! The British were repulsed and fell back in confusion, but were soon rallied for a second attack, and were again repulsed and scattered in all directions. Howe now was reinforced by General Clinton, the fugitives rallied and they rushed up to the redoubt in the face of a galling fire. For ten minutes the battle raged fearfully, when the ammunition of the Americans became exhausted and the firing ceased. The British then scaled the bank and compelled the Americans to retreat, while they fought fiercely with clubbed muskets. The British took possession of Bunker Hill and fortified it, but withal could claim no great victory. The American loss from killed, wounded, and prisoners was about 450 men; while the loss of the British from the same cause was about 1,100. This was the first real battle of the Revolution and lasted about two hours.

June 17.—The first man killed at the Battle of Bunker Hill was named Pollard, from Billerica. He was struck by a cannon ball from the battle ship Somerset.

Sept. 25.—Colonel Ethan Allen, with 80 men, attacked the British garrison at Montreal, under Gen. Prescott. Allen was defeated, and he was made prisoner and sent to England in irons.

Nov. 13.—Montreal surrendered to the Americans under Gen. Montgomery.

Dec. 31.—Americans assault Quebec and are repulsed. Gen. Montgomery was killed, and Colonel Arnold was wounded. The command then devolved upon Capt. Morgan, whose expert riflemen, with Lamb's artillery, forced their way into the lower town; but, after several hours' contest, he was obliged to surrender.

Peyton Randolph, first President of Congress, died, aged 52.

The first line of post offices established; Dr. Franklin appointed postmaster.

Bills of credit, known as Continental money, issued by Congress.

Kentucky first settled by whites, near Lexington.

During this year Continental money depreciated so much that a hundred paper dollars was hardly equivalent to one dollar in silver. About $200,000,000 of Continental currency was now in circulation.

Jan. 1.—The Union Flag was unfurled at Cambridge by Gen. Washington. British burned Norfolk. At that time the city contained a population of 6,000, and the loss by the conflagration was about $1,500,000. [This flag was composed of thirteen alternate red and white stripes, differing only with the present one by having on the blue corner a horizontal and perpendicular bar. Among the various flags borne by military companies was one from the men of Culpepper county, Va., bearing the significant device of a rattlesnake, and the injunction: Don't tread on me! It is said to the opposer: Don't tread on me, I have dangerous fangs!]

March.—Silas Deane appointed to solicit aid for the Colonies, and succeeded in obtaining 1,500 muskets from France, and promises of men and money.

March 17.—British evacuate Boston, numbering 7,000 soldiers, 4,000 seamen, and 1,500 families of loyalists. Sailed for Halifax that day.

June 18.—Evacuation of Canada by the Americans.

June 28.—Fort Sullivan, at Charleston Harbor, attacked by land and water, by the British, and, after a contest lasting ten hours, the British were repulsed, with a loss of 225 killed and wounded, while the garrison suffered a loss of only 2 killed and 22 wounded.

July 4.—Congress declared the thirteen United States free and independent. [Following this declaration, the statue of George III., in New York, was taken down, and the lead, of which it was composed, was converted into musket balls.]

July 8.—Declaration of Independence read to the people by John Nixon, from the Observatory, State House yard, Philadelphia.

Aug. 27.—Battle of Long Island, in which 5,000 Americans were defeated by 10,000 British, under command of Cornwallis, Gowanus and Clinton. About 500 Americans were killed and wounded, and 1,100 made prisoners. The British loss in killed, wounded, and prisoners, was 367.

Aug. 29.—Washington, under cover of a heavy fog, silently retreated from Long Island to New York. [During the night a woman living near the present Fulton Ferry, where the Americans embarked, sent her negro servant to inform the British of the movement. The negro fell into the hands of the Hessians. They could not understand a word of his language, and detained him until so late in the morning that his information was of no avail.]

Sept. 1.—Capt. Nathan Hall, of Connecticut, was captured and executed as a spy by order of Sir William Howe.

Sept. 15.—New York City evacuated by the Americans, and taken possession of by the British.

Sept. 21.—A fire broke out in a small groggery near the foot of Broad street, and about 500 buildings were destroyed. The British charged the fire upon the Americans, but it was proven to be purely accidental.

Oct. 11-12.—Battle on Lake Champlain. Retreat of Washington over the Hudson and across the Jerseys to Pennsylvania.

Oct. 28.—A severe engagement was fought at White Plains, at which the Americans were driven from their position. Losses about equal—not more than 300 in killed, wounded, and prisoners.

Nov. 26.—The British, 5,000 strong, capture Fort Washington, located between 181st and 186th streets. In this engagement the British lost more than 1,000 men, while the American loss in killed and wounded did not exceed 100. More than 2,000 Americans were made prisoners of war. [Nothing could exceed the horrors of those made prisoners. The sugar-houses of New York being large, were used for the purpose, and therein scores suffered and died. But the most terrible scenes occurred on board several old hulks, which were anchored in the waters around New York, and used for prisoners. Of them the Jersey was the most famous for the sufferings it contained and brutality of its officers. From these vessels, anchored near the present Navy Yard at Brooklyn, almost 11,000 victims were carried ashore during the war, and buried in shallow graves in the sand. Their remains were gathered in 1808 and put in a vault situated near the termination of Front street, at Hudson avenue, Brooklyn.]

Dec. 8.—The British squadron, defeated at Fort Sullivan, sailed into Narragansett Bay, and took possession of Rhode Island.

Dec. 12.—Congress, alarmed at the approach of the British to Philadelphia, adjourned to meet in Baltimore on the 20th inst.

Dec. 13.—Gen. Lee, while quartered in a small tavern at Barkingridge, New Jersey, remote from his troops, was surprised and taken prisoner by English cavalry.

Dec. 25.—Washington crosses the Delaware.

Dec. 26.—Battle of Trenton. Rall, the Hessian commander, was engaged at card-playing and wine drinking, when a negro gave him a note from a Tory, warning him of the approach of the Americans. Being deeply interested in the game, and excited by wine, he thrust the note unopened into his pocket. He was taken completely by surprise, and a little after sunrise, and while rallying his troops in the streets of Trenton, he fell mortally wounded. Between 40 and 50 of the Hessians were killed and fatally wounded, and more than 1,000, with arms, ammunition, and stores, were made prisoners.

Jan. 3.—Battle of Princeton. Washington attacks the reserves of Cornwallis in sight of Princeton, and just as the tide of battle was going in his favor, Cornwallis was aroused by the distant booming of cannon, and hastened to the assistance of his reserves. The Americans, who had not slept, nor scarcely tasted food, for thirty-six hours, were compelled, just as the heat of the first battle was over, to contest with fresh troops or fly. Washington chose to fly, and when Cornwallis entered Princeton not a "rebel" was found.

Jan. 7.—Americans attacked a party of Hessians, near Elizabethport, New Jersey, and killed between forty and fifty and drove the remainder back to Staten Island.

March 1.—British were driven entirely out of the State of New Jersey, except New Brunswick, and Amboy.

March 23.—British made a descent to destroy American stores at Peekskill, N. Y., but the Americans perceiving that defence would be futile, set fire to the stores and returned to the hills in the rear, while the British returned to New York the same evening.

April 26.—Danbury, Conn., was burned by order of Governor Tryon, destroying a large quantity of stores belonging to Americans, and cruelly treating the inhabitants.

May 23.—Col. Meigs attacked a British provision post at Sag Harbor, Long Island, and burned a dozen vessels, the store houses and contents, and secured ninety prisoners without losing a man.

June.—Congress resolved that the flag should carry as many stripes and stars as states. This resulted at last in a cumbersome flag with twenty stars and twenty stripes.

June 14.—Adoption of the American flag by Congress.

June 30.—British evacuate New Jersey.

July 5.—Burgoyne, with an army 10,000 strong, invested Fort Mifflin. The fort was garrisoned by about three thousand Americans under Gen. St. Clair. Owing to the immense advantage gained by the British, in planting a heavy battery of cannon on Mount Defiance, a hill 750 feet in height, the Americans were defeated and dispersed with a loss of a little over 300 in killed, wounded, and missing; the British loss was reported at 183.

July 27.—Murder of Miss McCrea.

July 10.—Col. William Barton, with a company of picked men, crossed Narragansett Bay in whale boats, in the midst of the British fleet, and captured Gen. Prescott, while in bed, and carried him to Providence.

July 31.—Lafayette commissioned by Congress Major-General.

Aug. 3.—Lafayette introduced to Washington at a public dinner.

Aug. 16.—A party of marauders from Burgoyne's army were defeated at Pennington by the New Hampshire militia under command of Col. Stark. On the same evening another party from Burgoyne's army were defeated by a Continental force, under Col. Seth Warner. The British lost by these expeditions almost 1,000 men, while the Americans lost but 100 killed, and as many wounded.

Sept. 11.—Battle of Brandywine. Gen. Howe in command of 16,000 British troops manœuvres to take Philadelphia. Washington with an army of 11,000 determines to defend the city, and takes a position at Chad's Ford on the Brandywine. A portion of the British army succeed in getting in his rear, and he is compelled to retreat to Chester, and on September 12th to Philadelphia. American loss in killed, wounded, and prisoners, 1,200; British loss near 800. During the engagement Lafayette was wounded in the leg. He was conveyed to Bethlehem, Pa., where the Moravian Sisters nursed him during his confinement.

Sept. 19.—A severe but indecisive engagement was fought at Bemis's Heights, between the forces under General Burgoyne and General Gates. The number of Americans engaged in this battle was about 2,500; that of the British about 3,000. American loss in killed, wounded, and missing, 319; British loss about 500. [Bemis's Heights is about 4 miles north of the valley of Still Water, and 25 miles north of Albany.]

Sept. 28.—General Wayne was surprised by a party of British and Hessians under General Gray, near Paoli Tavern, Chester county, Pa., and lost 300 of his party. The bodies of 53 Americans, found on the field next morning, were interred in one broad grave, and 40 years afterwards the Republican Artillerist, of Chester county, erected a neat marble monument over them.

Sept. 26.—The British, under Howe, march to Philadelphia without opposition.

Sept. 27.—Congress fled from Philadelphia to Lancaster, Pa.

Sept. 30.—Congress assembled in York, Pa., and continued in session there until the following summer.

Oct. 4.—Battle of Germantown. Washington attacked the British at Germantown, and caused the enemy to make a hasty retreat. Lieut. Col. Musgrave, in the retreat, in order to avoid the bayonets of his pursuers, took refuge in a stone house. This, together with a heavy fog, occasioned many mistakes among the Americans; and after a severe action, they were obliged to retreat with the loss of about 1,000 men in killed and wounded;

while the British loss was about 800 killed and wounded.

Oct. 7.—Battle of Saratoga. Another battle was fought between Burgoyne and Gates on the same ground occupied 19th of September, and, after a severe struggle, Burgoyne was compelled to fall back to the heights of Saratoga, leaving the Americans in possession of the field.

Oct. 12.—Kingston, N. Y., burned. General Clinton, who was to reinforce Burgoyne at Saratoga, sends marauding parties through the country, and burns Kingston. Being informed of Burgoyne's surrender, he retreats to New York.—[While the American forces were regathering, a man from the British army was arrested on suspicion of being a spy. He was seen to swallow something. An emetic brought it up and it was discovered to be a hollow silver bullet, containing a dispatch from Clinton to Burgoyne written on thin paper. That bullet is yet in the family of George Clinton, who was the first Republican Governor of New York.]

Oct. 17.—Burgoyne surrenders his whole army, numbering 5,791, to Gen. Gates, at Saratoga, N. Y.

Oct. 22.—Fort Mercer on the Delaware river, was attacked by 2,000 Hessian grenadiers, under Count Donop, and were repulsed by a garrison of 500 men, under Lieut. Col. Green. Hessians' loss 400. Donop was terribly wounded and taken to the house of a Quaker near by, where he expired. He was buried beneath the fort. A few years ago his bones were disinterred and his skull was taken possession of by a New Jersey physician.

Nov. 9.—Howe's army goes into winter quarters at Philadelphia.

Nov. 16.—American garrison abandon Fort Mifflin, and two days after, British ships sail up to Philadelphia.

Dec. 4.—Gen. Howe marched out to attack Washington, expecting to take him by surprise, but a Quaker lady of Philadelphia, who had overheard British officers talking about this enterprise at her house, gave Washington timely information, and he was too well prepared for Howe to fear his menaces. After some skirmishes, in which several Americans were lost, Howe returned to Philadelphia.

Dec. 11.—Washington goes into winter quarters at Valley Forge. This was a gloomy winter to the Patriot army. Continental money was so depreciated in value, that an officer's pay would not keep him in clothes. The men were camped in cold, comfortless huts, with little food or clothing. Barefooted, they left on the frozen ground their tracks in blood. Few had blankets, and straw could not be obtained. Soldiers, weak from hunger and benumbed by cold, slept on the bare earth, with no change of clothing and no suitable food; sickness soon followed, and with no medicine to administer to their complaints, many found relief from their sufferings in death.

Dec. 16.—Independence of the United States acknowledged by France.

Dec. 18.—Constitution of North Carolina adopted.

During this year Vermont was claimed by both New York and New Hampshire, as a part of their territory, but the people met in convention and proclaimed themselves free, independent, and separate States. After purchasing the claims of New York, for $30,000, Vermont was admitted into the Union, Feb. 18, 1791.

Feb. 6.—Treaty of alliance was formed with France, by which the French and Americans became united against the British Government.

March 20.—American Commissioners were received at the Court of France as the representatives of a sister nation; an event which was considered in Europe, at that time, as the most important which had occurred in the annals of America since its first discovery by Columbus.

May 7.—Salutes were fired by the army at Valley Forge, in honor of the event of the treaty of alliance with France, and, by order of Washington, shouts and huzzas were proclaimed for the King of France.

June 18.—Howe's army evacuate Philadelphia, and retreat towards New York.

June 28.—The battle of Monmouth was fought on a Sabbath day. It was one of the most sultry ever known when the two armies met in conflict, which raged from 9 A.M. until dark. Many soldiers on both sides fell from the excessive heat of the day, and when night came they were glad to rest. The British were commanded by Gen. Clinton, and the Americans by Washington. The Americans intended to renew the fight on the morning of the 29th, but found the enemy's camp deserted. The British left about 300 killed on the field of battle, and a large number of sick and wounded. American loss in killed, wounded, and missing, 228. Many of the missing returned to the army, and the killed was less than 70.

July 5.—Massacre of Wyoming. About 1,600 Indians and Tories, under command of Butler and Brant, appeared on the banks of the Susquehanna, and compelled two of the forts nearest to the frontier to surrender to them. The savages spared the women and children, but butchered the rest of their prisoners without exception. They then surrounded Fort Kingston, and to dismay the garrison, hurled into the place 200 scalps still reeking with blood. The garrison was overpowered by the savages, and compelled to surrender. The prisoners, composed of men, women, and children, were then enclosed in houses and barracks, which were set on fire, and the miserable wretches were soon consumed by the flames. The whole Wyoming valley, consisting of eight towns on the Susquehanna, suffered the same destruction of life and property, and none escaped but a few women and children, and these dis-

July 8.—Count D'Estaing, of the French navy, arrives in the Delaware with a large fleet, causing Howe to retreat with his vessels to the waters of Amboy or Raritan bay.

Aug. 12.—Count D'Estaing sailed out of Newport harbor, Rhode Island, to engage the British fleet in command of Howe, but a terrible storm arose and disabled both fleets, and the French squadron returned to Newport and sailed to Boston for repairs. [Very old people of Rhode Island used to speak of this gale as the great storm. So violent was the wind that it brought spray from the ocean a mile distant, and incrustated the windows of the town with salt.]

Aug. 29.—Battle of Quaker Hill, Rhode Island, in which the Americans lost 90 killed and 172 wounded and missing. British loss about 220.

Sept. 22.—Paul Jones' naval battle.
The engagement lasted from seven in the morning until ten at night. The contest was fierce and desperate. Paul Jones, in command of the American flotilla, finding the enemy's guns longer than his, brought his ships so close, until the muzzles of his guns came in contact with those of his enemy. The magazine of the British ship Serapis blew up, set fire to the vessel and communicated the flames to Jones' vessel. In the midst of this the American frigate Alliance came up, and mistaking her partner, fired a broadside into the vessel of Jones; but soon discovered her mistake and turned her guns upon the enemy. The British crew were killed or wounded, the Serapis on fire (but the flames were afterward subdued) and the frigate Countess of Scarborough captured by the Americans. Paul Jones came off victorious. His vessel (the Goodman Richard) was so badly crippled that it soon sunk; and of the crew of 365, only 68 were left alive. Jones, after this victory, wandered with his unmanageable vessel for some time, and at length, on the 6th of October found his way into the waters of the Texel.

Nov. 11.—Cherry Valley, New York, attacked by Indians and Tories. Many of the people were killed and carried into captivity, and for an area of a hundred miles around the village, desolation, ruin, and destruction prevailed for months.

Dec. 29.—Savannah captured. Gen.
Howe, the American officer, defended the city with about 1,000 men, while he was attacked by Col. Campbell of the British forces with 2,000 veterans. Through the treachery of a negro, Campbell was informed of a private path to the right of the Americans, through which his troops marched and gained the rear of Howe's army. Howe finding himself attacked in front and rear ordered a retreat, pursued by the enemy. The Americans lost 100 killed, 88 officers and 415 privates made prisoners. The whole loss of the British was 7 killed and 19 wounded.

Jan. 9.—Fort Sunbury, about 28 miles southward from Savannah, captured by the British.

Feb. 14.—While a band of Tories, under Col. Boyd, were on their march to join the Royal troops, and desolating the Carolina frontier, they were attacked by Colonel Pickens, at the head of a body of militia. Boyd and 70 of his men were killed, and 75 made prisoners. Pickens lost 38.

March 3.—General Ashe, in command of near 2,000 Americans at Brier creek, about 40 miles below Augusta, Ga., was surprised by Gen. Prevost and lost almost his entire army by death, captivity, and disappearance. About 150 killed and drowned, 80 made prisoners, and a large number who were dispersed, did not take up arms again for several months.

March 11.—General Prevost, commanding the British forces, demands the surrender of Charleston, but, receiving a prompt refusal, he spent the remainder of the day in preparing for an assault. That night was a fearful one for the citizens, for they expected to be greeted at dawn with bursting bomb-shells and red-hot cannon balls. But Prevost had been informed of the approach of Lincoln, and at midnight retreated to Savannah.

March 26.—Governor Tryon went with 1,500 British regulars and Hessians to destroy some salt works at Horseneck, N. Y., and attack an American detachment under General Putnam at Greenwich. The Americans were dispersed, but Putnam rallied his troops at Stamford, pursued the British on their return to New York the same evening, capturing a lot of plunder and 38 prisoners.

May 9.—Sir George Collier entered Hampton Roads with a small fleet, bearing Gen. Mathews with land troops, and from thence they carried destruction and desolation on both sides of Elizabeth river, from the Roads to Norfolk and Portsmouth.

June 20.—The British were attacked at Stone Ferry, 10 miles southwest from Charleston, by a part of Lincoln's army, but after a severe engagement, and the loss of almost 300 men in killed and wounded, they repulsed the Americans, whose loss was greater.

July 4.—Collier's vessels conveyed Gov. Tryon and 2,500 troops to the shores of Connecticut, where they plundered New Haven and laid East Haven, Fairfield, and Norwalk in ashes, and cruelly burned the defenceless inhabitants. This destruction was completed from the 4th to the 12th of July.

July 15.—Stony Point, 40 miles north of New York on the Hudson, captured by General Wayne. Wayne attacked the fort in the rear with ball and bayonet at two separate points, in the face of a heavy cannonade from the garrison. Wayne, though wounded in the head, wrote to Washington, "The fort and garrison, with Col. Johnson, are ours." The British loss in killed, wounded, and prisoners, about 600; the loss of Americans was 15 killed and 83 wounded.

July 19.—Major Henry Lee surprised the British garrison at Paulus Hook (now Jersey City) opposite New York, and killed thirty soldiers and took one hundred and sixty prisoners.

Oct. 9.—A combined assault by the Americans and French was commenced on the British works around Savannah, by General Lincoln and Count D'Estaing, and after five hours hard fighting there was a truce for the purpose of burying the dead. Nearly 1,000 of the French and Americans had been killed and wounded.
A renewal of the assault was proposed by General Lincoln, but he was compelled to give up the idea when he felt sure of victory, on account of the opposition of the French commander.

Oct. 25.—British troops evacuate Rhode Island, leaving behind them all their heavy artillery and a large quantity of stores.

Murder of Mrs. Caldwell. While the British were plundering through the State of New Jersey, in the vicinity of Elizabethtown, they came upon the residence of Rev. Mr. Caldwell. Mrs. Caldwell was sitting on the bed with her little child by the hand, and her nurse, with her infant babe by her side, when she was instantly shot dead by an unfeeling British soldier, who had come around to an unguarded part of the house, with an evident design to perpetrate the deed. Her murderer was never punished.

April 14.—General Tarleton, commanding the British, defeated Col. Huger on the head-waters of the Cooper river, near Charleston, S. C., and killed 25 Americans.

May 6.—A party under Col. White, of New Jersey, were routed at a ferry on the Santee, with a loss of about thirty in killed, wounded, and prisoners.

May 12.—Surrender of Charleston.
After three days of heavy cannonade from two hundred guns, and all night long the bursting of destructive bombshells, and at one time a fire in five different places, the city of Charleston was surrendered to the British, under Gen. Clinton. Gen.
Lincoln and his troops, with a large number of citizens, were made prisoners of war. Altogether the captives amounted to between 5,000 and 6,000, and four hundred pieces of cannon.

[Among the American detachments which hastened towards Charleston to assist Lincoln, and retreated when they heard of his fall, was that of Col. Buford, commanding 400 infantry and a small troop of cavalry, with two field pieces.
He retreated, and when near the Wax-low Creek, some 60 miles further north, he was overtaken and surprised by Tarleton. They gave no quarters, but massacred or maimed the larger portion of Buford's command. His loss in killed, wounded, and prisoners was 313. He also lost his artillery, ammunition, and baggage.]

May 19.—Dark days. Darkness commenced between the hours of 10 and 11 a. m., and continued until the middle of the next night. Its extent was from Falmouth, Maine, to New Jersey. The darkness was so great in some parts of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine, Rhode Island and Connecticut, that persons were unable to see to read, or manage their domestic business, without lighting candles, and everything bore the appearance and gloom of night.

June 7.—British take possession of Elizabethtown and burn Connecticut farms.

June 12.—Clinton, commanding British forces, endeavors to draw Washington into a general battle or to capture his stores at Morristown, but fails in both.

June 23.—In a skirmish at Springfield N. J., the British were defeated by the Americans under Gen. Greene. After setting fire to the village, the enemy retreated, and passed over to Staten Island.

July 10.—A powerful French fleet, under Admiral Ternay, arrives at Newport, Rhode Island, bearing 6,000 troops, under the Count de Rochambeau. This had a tendency to restrain Clinton from any further advances towards enticing Washington to fight.

Aug. 6.—Battle of Camden. After a desperate struggle with an overwhelming force, the Americans, under command of Gen. Gates, were defeated and routed with a loss of killed, wounded, and prisoners, of about 1,000 men, besides all of their artillery and ammunition and a portion of their baggage and stores. The British loss was 325. Among the American officers killed was Baron de Kalb, whose remains yet lie under a monument at Camden.

Sept. 4.—Benedict Arnold's treason discovered.

Sept. 28.—Major Andre was captured by three militiamen named John Paulding, David Williams, and Isaac Van Wart.

Oct. 2.—Major John Andre, an adjutant general in the British army, was hanged as a spy at Tappan, on the Hudson river, N. Y.

Oct. 7.—Battle of King's Mountain, South Carolina. This was a severe engagement, in which the British were defeated with a loss of 300 men in killed and wounded, and the death of Major Patrick Ferguson, their commander. The spoils of victory, which cost the Americans only 20 men, were 800 prisoners and 1,500 stand of arms.

Nov. 20.—Gen. Sumter engages the British general Tarleton at Blackstock's plantation, on the Tyger river, in a Union district. The British were repulsed with a loss in killed and wounded of about 300. The American loss was only 3 killed and 5 wounded. Sumter was among the latter, and he was detained from the field for several months, by his wounds.

up town, in Elizabethtown. She was carrying a small bundle tied up in her handkerchief, when a British sentinel said the bundle must be seized for the State. Mr. Caldwell immediately left the lady, saying he would deliver the bundle to the commanding officer, who was then present; and, as he stepped forward to do so, another soldier told him to stop, which he immediately did. The soldier without further provocation shot him dead on the spot. The villain who murdered him was seized and executed.

Jan. 1.—Mutiny of Pennsylvania Line.
 The pay of officers and men of the Continental army had been so long in arrears, and money asked for in vain, that finally 1,300 troops of the Pennsylvania Line left the camp at Morristown, with the avowed determination of marching to Philadelphia, and in person, demand justice of the National Legislature. When the mutineers reached Princeton they were met by British emissaries from New York, who came to seduce them by bribes to enter the King's service. Indignant at the implied suspicion of their patriotism, the insurgents seized the spies and delivered them to Gen. Wayne for punishment. When Gen. Wayne, who was sent by Washington to bring the insurgents back, first placed himself before the insurgents with loaded pistols, they put their bayonets to his breast, and said:
 "We love and respect you, but if you fire you are a dead man. We are not going to the enemy; on the contrary, if they were now to come out, you should see us fight under your orders with as much alacrity as ever." They were met also by a deputation from Congress, who relieved their wants, and gave them such satisfactory guarantees for the future, that they returned to their duty.

Jan.—The Bank of North America, the first ever established in the United States, about this time came into existence in Philadelphia. It was under the charge of Robert Morris, to whose superintendence Congress had intrusted the public Treasury.

Jan. 5.—Benedict Arnold, traitor, now in the employ of the British, penetrates up the James river, and destroys a large quantity of public and private stores at Richmond. [Great efforts were made to seize Arnold. Sergeant Champs, one of Major Lee's dragoons, went in disguise to New York, enlisted in a corps over which Arnold had command, and had almost consummated a plan for abducting him to the Jersey shore, when the traitor was ordered to the Southern expedition. Instead of carrying Arnold off, Champs, himself, was taken to Virginia with the corps in which he had enlisted. There he escaped and joined Lee in the Carolinas.]

Jan. 17.—Defeat of the British at Cow-pens, S. C., by Gen. Morgan. The enemy lost near 300 men in killed and wounded, 500 were made prisoners, and a large quantity of arms, ammunition, and stores were captured.

Jan. 18.—A mutiny occurred among a portion of the Jersey line, at Pompton. Washington sent General Robert Howe, with 500 men, to suppress it, and, after hanging two of the ringleaders, the remainder quietly submitted.

March 15.—Battle of Guilford, N. C. The Americans were repulsed, and the British were left masters of the field, though the victory so completely shattered Cornwallis' army that it was almost as destructive to him as a defeat. American loss, in killed and wounded, about 400, besides almost 1,000 who deserted to their homes. The loss of the British was over 600, including Lieut.-Col. Webster, one of the most efficient officers in the British army.

April 25.—Battle near Camden. While Gen. Greene was breakfasting at a spring on the eastern slope of Hobkirk's Hill, S. C., and while some of his men were cleaning their guns, and others washing their clothes, they were surprised and defeated by the British, under Rawdon. American loss in killed, wounded, and missing, 266 men. The British lost 258. Greene conducted his retreat so well, that he carried away all his artillery and baggage, with 50 British prisoners.

May 10.—Gen. Rawdon, alarmed at the prospective increase of Greene's army, set fire to Camden, and retreats to Nelson's Ferry, on the Santee.

June 4.—Gen. Tarleton, in command of a British marauding party, captured seven members of the Virginia Legislature. Gov. Jefferson narrowly escaped capture by fleeing from his house to the mountains.

June 5.—Surrender of Augusta, Ga., to the Americans, under Gen. Lee, after a siege of eleven days. American loss, 51, in killed and wounded. British loss, 52 killed, and 334 (including wounded) were made prisoners.

Sept. 6.—Arnold lands at the mouth of the Thames, attacks Fort Trumbull, and burns New London (his native town), Connecticut. Another division of this expedition went up on the east side of the Thames, attacked Fort Griswold, at Groton, and after Col. Ledyard had surrendered it, he, and almost every man in the fort were cruelly murdered or badly wounded.

Sept. 8.—Battle of Eutaw Springs, S. C. This was a severe battle, which resulted in the British being driven from their camp by Gen. Greene. But while the Americans were scattered among the tents of the enemy, indulging in drinking and plundering, the British unexpectedly renewed the battle, and, after a bloody conflict of about four hours, the Americans were obliged to give way. That night the British retreated to Charleston, and the next day Greene took possession of the battlefield. American loss in killed, wounded, and missing, 555. British loss, 693.

Oct. 19.—Surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. For ten days the Americans kept up a heavy cannonade upon the British works at Yorktown, and hurled red-hot balls among the English shipping, and burned several vessels. Cornwallis, despairing of receiving any aid, and perceiving his fortifications crumbling one by one under the terrible storm of iron from a hundred heavy cannon, attempted to escape by crossing to Gloucester, break through the French troops stationed there, and, by forced marches, reach New York. When the van of his troops embarked on York River, a storm arose as fearful and sudden as a summer tornado, dispersed the boats, compelled many to put back, and the attempt was abandoned. Cornwallis surrendered 7,000 British soldiers to Washington, and his shipping and seamen into the hands of DeGrasse.

Oct. 24.—Congress, and the loyal people throughout the United States, join in rendering thanks to God for the great victory at Yorktown—the surrender of Cornwallis.

Jan.—Bank of North America opened in Philadelphia.

Jan. 19.—Society of Cincinnati formed by many of the officers of the Continental army at Newberg, N. Y., for the purpose of promoting cordial friendship, and refreshing the memory, by frequent reunions, the great struggle they had passed through.

Slavery abolished in Massachusetts.

Jan. 20.—French and English Commissioners sign a treaty of peace.

Sept. 3.—A definite treaty of peace signed at Paris and England acknowledged the independence of the United States; allowed ample boundaries, extending northward to the great lakes, and westward to the Mississippi.

Nov. 3.—Continental army disbanded and return to their homes. Of the two hundred and thirty thousand Continental soldiers, and the fifty-six thousand militia who bore arms during the war, there is scarcely any survive at the present day. Great Britain sent to America during the war 112,584 troops for the land service, and more than 22,000 seamen. Of this host, not one is known to be living. One of them (John Batin) died in the city of New York, June, 1852, at the age of 100 years and 4 months.

Nov. 25.—British evacuate New York, and on the same day General Knox entered the city with a small remnant of the Continental army, and took possession of the city. Before evening the last British soldier passed from the shores of America.

Dec. 4.—Washington takes an affectionate farewell with his officers at New York.

Dec. 23.—Washington, in the city of Annapolis, Maryland, resigns his commission in the army.

During the war the English employed to aid them in the subjection of the country over 12,000 Indians, whose mode of warfare was to take scalps, not prisoners, and to massacre women and children. As an evidence of this fact, Captain Gerish, of the New England militia, captured on the frontier of Canada eight packages of scalps, properly cured and dried, which were to be sent to England as a present from the Seneca Indians to George III. The packages contained 43 scalps of soldiers, 297 of farmers, 88 of women, 190 of boys, 211 of girls, 22 of infants, and 122 assorted, making a total of 973 scalps.

Whiskey insurrection in Pennsylvania.
A law was passed in 1791, which imposed duties on domestic distilled liquors, and when officers of the Government were sent to enforce it among the Dutch inhabitants of western Pennsylvania, they were resisted by the people in arms. The insurrection soon became general in all the western counties, and in the vicinity of Pittsburgh many outrages were committed. Buildings were burned, mails were robbed, and Government officers were insulted and abused. It was thought that the insurgents at one time numbered 7,000. The President ordered a large body of militia, under Gen. Henry Lee, to the scene of these troubles, and the insurrectionists were dispersed and obedience to the laws enforced.

Congress appropriates seven hundred thousand dollars for the purpose of orga-

Feb.—Bank of United States incorporated with a capital of $10,000,000. Prior to this the whole banking capital in the United States was only $2,000,000, invested in Bank of North America at Philadelphia, the Bank of New York, in New York City, and the Bank of Massachusetts in Boston.

April 19.—John Jay was appointed by the United States envoy extraordinary to the British Court, to adjust all complaints growing out of the Revolutionary war, such as the British violating the treaty of September 3, 1783, by holding military posts on the frontiers; that British emissaries incited the Indians to hostilities; that no indemnification had been made for plantations plundered and negroes sold into the West Indies at the close of the war; and also to remonstrate to the English government against capturing neutral vessels and impressing our seamen into their service.

1795.

Nov. 28.—A treaty of peace was made with the Dey of Algiers, by which an annual tribute was given by the United States, for the redemption of captives.
Between the years 1785 and 1793, the Al-gerine pirates captured and carried into Algiers fifteen American vessels, and made 180 officers and seamen slaves of the most revolting kind. By this treaty the United States agrees to pay $800,000 for captives then alive, and, in addition, to make the Dey, or governor, a present of a frigate worth $100,000. An annual tribute of $23,000, in maritime stores, was also paid. This was complied with until the breaking out of the war of 1812.

June 24.—A treaty, concluded by Mr. Jay, with the British government, was ratified by the Senate. This treaty was not very satisfactory. It provided for the collection of debts here by British creditors, which had been contracted before the revolution, but procured no redress for those who lost negroes. It secured indemnity for unlawful captures on the seas and the evacuation of the forts on the frontier.

Aug. 3.—Commissioners of the United States meet the Indian chiefs of western tribes at Greenville, Ohio, and conclude a treaty of peace, by which the United States obtains a large tract of land in the present States of Michigan and Indiana. Yellow fever pestilence in New York.

June.—Tennessee admitted into the United States, making the number of States in the Union sixteen.

Louis Philippe king of France, arrived in Philadelphia. He makes a tour through the country; returns again to the United States in 1800, thence to France, and dies in England in 1848.

Credit of the Government re-established, and all disputes with foreign powers, except France, adjusted.

Sept. 17.—Washington issued his farewell address.

John Adams inaugurated President of the United States; Thomas Jefferson, Vice-President.

May 15.—An extra session of Congress was convened to consider our relations with France. Our government had been insulted by the French minister here, the American minister ordered to leave France, and the French authorized depredations upon our commerce. Three envoys, appointed by Congress to proceed to France to adjust difficulties, were refused an audience unless they would pay a tribute to the French treasury, and, upon refusal, were ordered out of the country.

Nov.—Congress convened, and preparations were made for war with France.

Alien and sedition laws adopted by the United States. The first authorized the President to expel from the country any person, not a citizen, who should be suspected of conspiring against the Republic. The sedition law authorized the suppression of publications calculated to weaken the authority of the government.

May.—Quite a large standing army was authorized by Congress, and in July Washington was appointed its Commander-in-Chief. The army was never summoned to the field.

France, and the U. S. frigate Constellation captures the French frigate L'Insurgente.

Feb. 26.—Three commissioners proceeded to France to negotiate for peace. When they arrived in France they found the government in the hands of Napoleon Bonaparte. He promptly received the commissioners, concluded a treaty of peace September 30, 1800, and gave such assurances of friendly relations that the provincial army of the United States was disbanded.

Dec. 14.—Washington died at Mount Vernon, at the age of sixty-eight years. At the recommendation of Congress, the wearing of crape on the left arm for thirty days, was pretty generally complied with.

Feb. 1.—The U. S. frigate Constellation had an action with the French frigate La Vengeance, but escaped capture, after a loss of 160 men killed and wounded.

Removal of the Capitol from Philadelphia to Washington.

A second census was taken, and the population of the Union was found to be 5,319,762, an increase of 1,400,000 in ten years. The revenue, which amounted to $4,771,000 in 1790, now amounted to $13,000,000.

Repeal of the act imposing internal duties. The enforcement of this law is what caused the whiskey insurrection in Western Pennsylvania in 1794.

March 4.—Thomas Jefferson inaugurated President of the United States, and Aaron Burr Vice-President. When the electors counted the votes Jefferson and Burr had an equal number. According to the provisions of the Constitution the vote was then transferred to the House of Representatives. Mr. Jefferson was finally chosen President after 35 ballots, and Mr. Burr proclaimed Vice-President.

June 10.—Tripoli declares war against the United States. Prior to the declaration of war (1800) Capt. Bainbridge arrived at Algiers, in the frigate George Washington. The Dey demanded the use of his vessel to carry an ambassador to Constantinople. Bainbridge remonstrated, when the Dey haughtily observed: "You pay me tribute, by which you become my slaves, and therefore I have a right to order you as I think proper." Bainbridge was obliged to comply, for the castle guns would not allow him to pass out of the harbor.

peror of Morocco to terms, his squadron proceeded to Tripoli. One of his vessels (the Philadelphia) struck on a rock while reconnoitering, and was captured by the Tripolitans. The officers were treated as prisoners, but the crew were made slaves.

April.—Louisiana purchased of France for $15,000,000, and divided into Territory of New Orleans and the District of Louisiana. It contained a mixed population of about 85,000, and 40,000 slaves at this time.

Jerome Bonaparte, nineteen years of age, arrived in New York. He visits Baltimore, falls in love there with a Miss Patterson and marries her. In 1805 he returns to France, leaving his wife to follow. The Emperor forbids her to enter France, and had the marriage annulled by the French Council. Jerome then married the daughter of the King of Wurtemberg, and six days after was made King of Westphalia.

Feb. 3.—Lieut. Decatur, with only 76 men, sails into the harbor of Tripoli, boards the Philadelphia, killed and drove into the sea all the Tripolitans defending her, set fire to the vessel, and returned to the American squadron without losing a man.

July 12.—Alexander Hamilton killed in a duel by Aaron Burr. The difficulty grew out of a political quarrel. Burr had been informed of some remarks made by Hamilton in public, derogatory to his character, and he demanded a retraction. Hamilton considered his demand unreasonable, and refused compliance. Burr challenged him to fight, and Hamilton reluctantly met him on the west side of the Hudson, near Hoboken, N. J., where they fought with pistols. Hamilton discharged his weapon in the air, but Burr took fatal aim, and his antagonist fell. Hamilton died the next day.

England insists upon continuing the right to search American vessels for suspected deserters from the British navy. American seamen were thus forced into the British service, under the pretence that they were deserters. The British in persisting in this outrage upon American seamen brought on the war of 1812.

Treason of Burr. During the summer of this year Aaron Burr organized military expeditions in the west, and the secrecy with which he carried on his operations, led the government to suspect that he designed to dismember the Union, and establish an independent empire west

Feb.—Aaron Burr arrested on the Tombigbee river, in the State of Alabama, on the charge of treason. He was tried at Richmond, Va., but the testimony showed that his probable design was an invasion of Mexican provinces, and then to establish an independent government. He was acquitted.

June 22.—The Chesapeake fired upon by the British frigate Leopard. The British demanded four seamen from the commander of the Chesapeake, claiming them as deserters from the British ship Melampus. Commodore Barron, not suspecting danger, and unprepared for an attack, surrendered the Chesapeake after losing three men killed and eighteen wounded.

July.—Proclamation issued ordering all British armed vessels to leave the waters of the United States, and forbidding any to enter until full satisfaction is given for the outrage on the United States frigate Chesapeake, and security against future aggressions should be made.

Nov. 11.—British in council issue an order prohibiting neutral nations trading with France, excepting upon paying a tribute to Great Britain; and France retaliates by issuing a decree December 17, forbidding all trade with England or her colonies, and authorizing the confiscation of any vessel found in French ports which had submitted to English search, or paid the exacted tribute. These retaliating war measures between England and France almost destroyed American shipping trade abroad.

Dec. 22.—Congress decreed an embargo, which detained all vessels, American and foreign, in our ports, and ordered American vessels home immediately, that the seamen might be trained for war.

The first steamboat built in the world by Robert Fulton, in New York. It was named the "Clermont," and made its first trip during this year from New York to Albany.

Commodore Barron, of the Chesapeake, tried and sentenced to be suspended for five years, on account of surrendering his vessel to the British in 1807.

Jan. 1.—The importation of African slaves into the United States, prohibited by Congress.

March 1.—Congress repeals the embargo on shipping, and at the same time passes a law forbidding all commercial intercourse with England and France until their obnoxious restrictions on commerce shall be removed.

March 4.—James Madison inaugurated President of the United States, and George Clinton as Vice-President.

General Harrison concludes a treaty with the Miami Indians, by which the United States gets possession of a large tract of land on both sides of the Wabash.

Third census of the United States. Population, 7,239,814.

March 23.—France issued a decree which declared every American vessel which had entered French ports since March, 1810, or that might thereafter enter, as forfeited, and authorized the sale of the same, together with the cargoes, the money to be placed in the French treasury. Bonaparte justified this decree by the plea that it was made in retaliation for the American decree of non-intercourse.

May.—Congress offers to resume commercial relations with either France or England, or both, on condition that they repeal their obnoxious orders and decrees before March 3, 1811. France feigned compliance, and the United States resumed commercial intercourse with that nation. But American vessels continued to be seized by French cruisers, and on March, 1811, Napoleon declared the obnoxious laws to still exist, and America thereafter ceased intercourse with that nation.

April 16.—Engagement between the American frigate President, Commodore Rogers commanding, and the British sloop-of-war Little Belt, Captain Bingham. The Little Belt was preying upon American merchantmen when hailed by Rogers of the President, and received a cannon shot in reply. A brief action ensued, when Captain Bingham, after losing eleven men killed and twenty-one wounded, gave a satisfactory answer to Rogers. At this time the American navy numbered only twelve large vessels of war, the British near nine hundred.

May 19.—A fire broke out near the corner of Chatham and Duane street, New York, and destroyed nearly one hundred buildings on both sides of Chatham street.

Nov. 11.—Battle of Tippecanoe. At four o'clock in the morning the Indians attacked the American camp, commanded by General Harrison, but after a bloody battle, lasting until dawn, the Indians were repulsed. The battle of Tippecanoe was one of the most desperate ever fought with the Indians, and the loss was heavy on both sides.

The British government declare the attack on the Chesapeake to have been unauthorized, and promised pecuniary aid to the families of those who were killed.

Dec. 27.—Burning of the Theatre at Richmond, Va. There were about 600 persons in the audience when the fire was first discovered. There was but one door for egress, and men, women, and children were pressing upon each other to get out, while the flames were surging upon those behind. It is supposed there were 61 persons burned to death.

During this year British orders for searching American vessels and impressing American seamen were rigorously enforced; insult after insult was offered the American flag, and the British press insolently boasted that the United States "could not be kicked into a war." A continuation of these outrages brought on the war of 1812.

Congress passed an act empowering the President to enlist 25,000 men, accept 50,000 volunteers, and to call out 100,000 militia. Henry Dearborn appointed commander-in-chief.

British Government declared the whole American coast in a state of blockade, except that of the New England States. The apparent sympathy of these States with Great Britain caused the enemies of our country to think that they would secede from the Union; but, as the war progressed, it proved that their patriotism was too strong to admit of such a catastrophe.

June.—Mob in Baltimore. A newspaper, called the Federal Republican, was destroyed by a mob for uttering sentiments of censure on the conduct of the government. Shortly after this affair the paper made its appearance again, containing severe allusions against the mayor, police, and people of Baltimore for the depredations that had been committed upon the establishment. The office was again mobbed, and during the frequent discharge of muskets Dr. Gale was killed; when the party in the office were finally escorted by the military to the county jail for protection against further violence. Shortly after dark, the mob assembled at the jail, carried the mayor away by force, and compelled the turnkey to open the door. General Lingan was killed; eleven were beaten and mangled with such weapons as stones, bludgeons, sledge-hammers, etc., and thrown as dead into one pile. Mr. Hanson, editor of the paper, fainting from repeated wounds, was carried away by a gentleman of opposite political sentiments, at the risk of his life. No effectual inquiry was ever made into this violation of the law, and the guilty escaped punishment.

First house in Rochester, N. Y., built.

April 8.—Louisiana admitted as a State.

April 12.—Death of George Clinton, Vice President of the United States.

June 4.—A bill declaring war to exist between the United States and Great Britain, passed the House of Representatives, by a vote of 79 to 49. On the 17th it passed the Senate by a vote of 19 to 13, and on that day it received the signature of the President. He issued his war manifesto two days afterward.

July 12.—Gen. Hall crosses Detroit river to attack Fort Malden. He encamped at Sandwich, and by this fatal delay, lost every advantage which an immediate attack might have secured.

July 17.—Fort Mackinaw, one of the strongest posts of the United States, was surprised and captured by an allied force of British and Indians.

by some British and Indians near Brownstown, on the Huron river.

Aug. 7.—Gen. Hull retires from Canada and takes his post at Detroit.

Aug. 13.—The Essex, Captain Porter, captures the Alert, the first vessel taken from the British that war.

Aug. 16.—Hull surrenders Detroit to the British. The English were commanded by Brock, consisting of 700 troops and 600 Indians.

Aug. 19.—U. S. frigate Constitution, Commodore Isaac Hull, captures the British frigate Guerriere. The contest lasted about forty minutes when the commander of the Guerriere surrendered and the vessel was so completely wrecked that she was burned. The Constitution suffered little damage and was ready for action the following day.

Oct. 13.—Queenstown Heights on the Canada frontier, captured by 225 Americans under command of Col. Van Rensselaer. Van Rensselaer was wounded at the landing, and Capt. Wood took command and successfully assaulted and took possession of the Heights.

Oct. 13.—Gen. Brock with 600 British troops, from Fort George attempted to regain the battery at Queenstown Heights but was repulsed and Brock was killed. In the meantime Gen. Stephen Van Rensselaer, was using his utmost endeavors to send reinforcements, but only 1,000 undisciplined troops could be induced to cross the river. These were attacked by fresh troops from Fort George and nearly all killed or made prisoners, while at least 1,500 of their companions in arms cowardly refused to cross to their aid.

Oct. 18.—U. S. sloop-of-war, Wasp, Captain Jones, captures the British brig Frolic, after a very severe conflict for three-quarters of an hour. Only three officers and one seaman, of 84 of the crew of the Frolic remained unhurt. The Wasp lost only ten men. The same afternoon the British ship Poictiers, carrying 74 guns, captured the Wasp.

Oct. 25.—The frigate United States, Commodore Decatur, captures the British frigate Macedonia. The fight lasted near two hours. The British lost more than 100 in killed and wounded, and Decatur lost only five killed and seven wounded. The frigate United States was very little injured.

Madison re-elected President, and Elbridge Gerry, as Vice-President.

During this year, it is estimated that upwards of 50 British armed vessels and 250 merchantmen, with an aggregate of more than 3,000 prisoners, and a vast amount of booty, were captured by the Americans.

Dec. 29.—Commodore Bainbridge, commanding the frigate Constitution, after three hours fighting, captured the British frigate Java, off San Salvador. The Java had 400 men on board, of whom almost 200 were killed or wounded, and she was so badly crippled that Bainbridge, finding her incapable of floating, burned her three days after the action.

Jan. 17.—The British frigate Narcissus captured the United States schooner Viper.

The remains of Captain James Lawrence, who died from wounds received on board of the United States frigate, Chesapeake, in 1813, were removed from Hall-fax and interred in Trinity church yard, N. Y. with imposing ceremony.

Jan. 22.—Americans defeated at Frenchtown, about 25 miles south of Detroit. A combined force, under Proctor, of 1,500 British and Indians, fell upon the American camp, commanded by Gen. Winchester, at dawn. After a severe battle and heavy loss on both sides, Winchester, who was made prisoner by the Indians, surrendered his troops on condition that ample protection should be given. Proctor, fearing the approach of Harrison, immediately marched for Malden, leaving the sick and wounded Americans behind, who were afterwards murdered and scalped by the Indians.

Feb. 22.—Ogdensburg, N. Y., taken by the British.

Feb. 24.—United States sloop-of-war, Hornet, Capt. Lawrence, engages the British brig, Peacock, off the mouth Demara river, South America. The Peacock surrendered after a conflict of fifteen minutes, and a few moments afterward she sunk, carrying down with her nine British seamen and three Americans. The loss of the Peacock in killed and wounded was 37; of the Hornet only 5.

April 25.—Mobile taken by a body of the American army.

April 27.—Americans capture York (now Toronto). The Americans landed about two miles west of the British works, and in the face of a galling fire from regulars and Indians, under Gen. Sheaffe, drove them back to their fortifications. The British retreated from the fort, but laid a train of wet powder to the magazine, and set fire to it, and while General Pike was pressing forward, the fort blew up, causing great destruction of life among the Americans. General Pike was mortally wounded, but he lived long enough to know that the American flag floated in triumph over the fort at Toronto. General Sheaffe escaped with the principal part of the troops, but lost all his baggage, books, papers, and a large amount of public property.

May 2.—British repulsed at Fort Sandusky, Ohio. The garrison of the fort consisted of 150 young men, commanded by Major Croghan, was assaulted by 500 regulars and 800 Indians, under Gen. Proctor. The British recoiled, panic-stricken, and fled in confusion leaving 150 of their killed and wounded. American loss one man killed and 7 wounded.

May 3.—Havre de Grace, Md., burned by the British blockading squadron.

May.—Unsuccessful siege of Fort Meigs on the Maumee river by the British. Gen. Clay, commanding 1,200 men, arrived with reinforcements for the fort and dispersed the enemy, but imprudently pursued the fugitives, was surrounded and captured. Proctor returned to the siege, but his Indian allies under Tecumseh, becoming impatient, deserted him, and the siege was abandoned.

May 27.—Fort George on the western shore of Niagara river, near its mouth, surrendered to the Americans.

May 29.—British repulsed at Sackett's Harbor. Sir George Prevost and a 1,000 soldiers landed in the face of a severe fire from some regulars stationed there. Gen. Brown, commander, rallied the militia, and their rapid gathering then so alarmed Prevost, that he hastily re-embarked, leaving almost the whole of his wounded behind.

June 1.—"Don't give up the ship." Capt. Lawrence, now in command of the frigate Chesapeake encountered the British frigate Shannon, about 80 miles from Boston. A furious action commenced which lasted only fifteen minutes. In that short time the Chesapeake lost 48 killed and 98 wounded; the Shannon 23 killed and 56 wounded. Lawrence, with his second officer in command, Ludlow, were among the slain at the beginning of the action; and, when Lawrence was carried below, he issued those brave and ever memorable words: "Don't give up the ship." During the contest the two vessels became entangled, and the British boarded the Chesapeake, and, after a desperate hand-to-hand struggle, hoisted the British flag. The remains of Lawrence, together with Ludlow's, were carried to Halifax and buried with the honors of war.

June 6.—British attack American camp at Stony Creek, Canada West, and were repulsed. It was very dark, and in the confusion both of the American generals (Chandler and Winder) were made prisoners. American loss in killed, wounded and missing, 154.

June 23.—Admiral Cockburn defeated at Craney Island.

June.—Gen. Dearborn, on account of ill-health, retires from commander-in-chief of the army, and is succeeded by Gen. Wilkinson.

Aug. 14.—British sloop-of-war Pelican captures the American brig Argus.

Aug. 30.—Fort Mimms, on the Alabama River, surprised and captured by a large body of Indians, under Tecumseh, who massacred about 300 men, women, and children.

Sept. 5.—British brig Boxer, Capt. Blythe, encounters American brig Enterprise, Lieut. Burrows, and after an engagement of forty minutes, off the coast of Maine, the Boxer surrendered. Both commanders were slain, and their bodies were buried in one grave at Portland.

Sept. 10.—Perry's victory on Lake Erie. The carnage of this engagement was very great. The Lawrence, Perry's flag ship, was soon disabled and became unmanageable, having all her crew, except four or five, killed or wounded. Perry then left her, in an open boat, and hoisted his flag on the Niagara. With this vessel he passed through the enemy's line, pouring broadsides right and left at half pistol-shot distance. The American loss, 27 killed and 98 wounded. The British lost about 200 in killed and wounded, and 600 prisoners. The British were commanded by Commodore Barclay.

Sept. 29.—Detroit evacuated by Proctor, and taken possession of by the Americans.

Oct. 5.—Battle of the Thames in Canada. Gen. Harrison, with 3,500 men, overtook Proctor in his retreat from Detroit, about 80 miles from that city. A desperate battle ensued. Tecumseh was slain, and his followers, who fought furiously, broke and fled. Almost the whole of Proctor's command were killed or made prisoners, and the general himself narrowly escaped with a few of his cavalry.

Nov. 3.—Gen. Coffee, with 900 men, surrounds an Indian camp near where the village of Jacksonville, Benton county, Ala., now stands, and killed 260 of them. Not a warrior escaped.

Nov. 5.—Americans again invade Canada, 7,000 strong, with the intention of co-operating with about 4,000 troops under Hampton, in an attack on Montreal.

Nov. 11.—Battle of Chrysler's Field, about ninety miles above Montreal, on the St. Lawrence river. This battle was fought by a detachment under General Brown, who was sent to disperse the British at Williamsburg, and cover the descent of boats carrying American troops on the St. Lawrence. Americans lost more than 300 men in killed and wounded, and the British about 200.

Dec. 10.—General McClure, commanding at Fort George, burnt the Canadian village of Newark, and two days after was compelled by the British to abandon the fort.

Dec. 19.—Fort Niagara captured by a strong force of British and Indians, and, in retaliation for the burning of Newark, set fire and destroyed Youngstown, Lewistown, Manchester (now Niagara Falls), and the Tuscorora Indian village, in Niagara county.

Dec. 30.—Buffalo and the little village of Black Rock laid in ashes, and a large amount of public and private property destroyed.

Power loom introduced in the United States.

During the spring and summer Admiral Cockburn, with a small squadron, carried on a distressing warfare on the coast between Delaware Bay and Charleston. The shipping in the Delaware was destroyed, and Lewistown cannonaded; Frenchtown, Havre de Grace, Georgetown, and Fredericktown, on the Chesapeake, were plundered and burned.

March 27.—General Jackson attacked and defeated the Indians at the Great Horse-Shoe Bend, on the Yallaposa river. The Indians had assembled here, in a fortified camp, 1,000 warriors strong, with their women and children, determined to make a desperate defence. They fought bravely, and almost 600 of their warriors were killed, as they refused to surrender. Only two or three were made prisoners, with about 300 women and children. Among those who bowed to submission was Weathersford, their greatest leader. He appeared suddenly before Jackson, in his tent, and standing erect, said: "I am in your power; do with me what you please. I have done the white people all the harm I could. I have fought them, and fought them bravely. My warriors are all gone now, and I can do no more. When there was a chance for success I never asked for peace. There is none now, and I ask for it for the remnant of my nation."

March 28.—United States frigate Essex, Captain Porter, was captured in the harbor of Valparaiso, by the British frigate Phoebe, and sloop-of-war Cherub. It was a desperate battle, the Essex losing 154 men killed and wounded. Captain Porter, in acknowledging the defeat to the Secretary of the Navy, says: "We have been unfortunate but not disgraced."

April 21.—The United States sloop-of-war Frolic was captured by the British frigate Orpheus and schooner Shelbourne.

April 29.—The Peacock captured the British brig Epervier, off the coast of Florida.

May 5.—Battle of Oswego. A British squadron, carrying 3,000 men, attacked Oswego, by land and water. The town was defended by about 300 men, under Captain Mitchell, and a small flotilla under Captain Woolsey. They defended the place for two days, when they were compelled to yield to superior force. The British loss was 235 men in killed and wounded; the Americans lost 69. The object of the British in this expedition was to destroy or capture a large quantity of stores at Oswego Falls, but the determined resistance they met with at Oswego caused them to abandon the project.

July 3.—Generals Scott and Ripley cross the Niagara river into Canada, and capture Fort Erie.

July 5.—Battle of Chippewa. General Brown met the British in the open fields at Chippewa, and repulsed the enemy with a loss of about 500 men; American loss about 300. The British retreated to Burlington Heights, where they were reinforced by troops under Lt. Gen. Drummond, who assumed command.

July 25.—Battle of Niagara Falls. The British force, under Drummond, was about one-third greater than Brown's. The battle commenced at sunset, and ended at midnight, when the Americans had lost 858 men in killed and wounded, and the British 878. The Americans were left in possession of the field, but were unable to carry away any of the spoils which they had captured. Generals Scott and Brown were wounded. The Americans retired to Fort Erie, where General Gaines took chief command.

Aug. 9-14.—Com. Hardy makes an unsuccessful attack on Stonington.

Aug. 15.—Gen. Drummond, in command of 5,000 British, made an assault on Fort Erie, and was repulsed with a loss of almost 1,000 men.

Aug. 24.—Battle of Bladensburg, capture of Washington, burning of the White House, and other public and private buildings. Ross, the British commander, first attacked Gen. Winder and Com. Barney at Bladensburg in command of 3,000 undisciplined militia, seamen, and marine. The militia fled, and the marines and seamen were made prisoners. Ross was in command of 5,000 men. He then pushed on to Washington, completed his destruction there, and retreated to his shipping on the 25th of August. In these exploits the British loss in killed, wounded, and by desertion, was almost 1,000 men; that of the Americans about 100 killed and wounded, and 20 prisoners. The President and his Cabinet were at Bladensburg when the British approached, but returned to the city when the conflict began, and narrowly escaped capture.

Sept. 11.—Battle of Plattsburg. The British, 14,000 strong, in command of Prevost, marched to Plattsburg, where, in conjunction with the navy, a battle ensued. The Americans, 1,500 strong, commanded by Gen. Macomb, and a large body of militia, under General Moores, retired to the south side of the Saranac. The land forces fought until dark, and every attempt of the British to cross the Saranac was bravely resisted. In the evening Prevost hastily retreated, leaving his sick and wounded, and a large quantity of military stores behind him. The British loss, from the 6th to the 11th of September, in killed, wounded, and deserted, was about 2,500, that of the Americans 121.

Sept. 11.—McDonough's victory on Lake Champlain. After an engagement of two hours and forty minutes, the British fleet, under Com. Downie, surrendered. The Americans lost in killed and wounded 116; the British 194, among whom was Commodore Downie, whose remains lie under a monument at Plattsburg.

Sept. 12.—The British make an unsuccessful attack on Baltimore, where Gen. Smith was in command. Ross, with 3,000 British troops, was pressing forward, when he was met by Gen. Stricker; a slight skirmish ensues, in which Gen. Ross is killed. He is succeeded in command by Col. Brooke. A battle now commenced, which lasted an hour and a quarter, when the Americans fell back towards the city. Both parties slept on their arms that night. On the following morning the British advanced as if to attack the city. In the meantime a bombardment had been kept upon the fort, whose garrison, under command of Major Armistead, made a gallant defence. No less than 1,500 shells were thrown. On the morning of the 14th the British re-embarked, and silently withdrew from the city. It is estimated that the enemy lost between six and seven hundred in these engagements.

Sept. 13.—Key composes "The Star Spangled Banner."

Sept. 15.—British attack Fort Bower (now Fort Morgan) at the entrance to Mobile Bay. They are repulsed by Major Lawrence, with the loss of one ship and many men.

Sept. 17.—A successful sortie was made from Fort Erie, and the advanced works of the besiegers destroyed and the enemy driven toward Chippewa. Gen. Drummond then retired to Fort George, on the northwestern shore of the Niagara river, near its mouth.

Oct. 29.—First steam war vessel was launched, and named The Fulton.

Nov. 5.—Americans abandon and destroy Fort Erie, cross the river and go into winter quarters at Buffalo, Black Rock, and Batavia.

Nov. 7.—Gen. Jackson, with 2,000 Tennessee militia and some Choctaw warriors, stormed Pensacola, Fla., drove the British to their shipping, and finally from the harbor, and made the Governor beg for mercy and surrender the town and all its military works unconditionally. Jackson then returned to Mobile.

Dec. 2.—Gen. Jackson arrives at New Orleans and declares martial law.

Dec. 14.—British capture a flotilla of American gun-boats in Lake Borgne. The attack was made by the enemy in about forty barges, conveying 1,200 men. American loss in killed and wounded about 40; the British about 300.

Dec. 15.—Hartford convention. This convention consisted of delegates from Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island, and two members from New Hampshire, and one from Vermont, these last were appointed at county meetings. The object of the convention was opposition to the war, and a threaten of secession of the New England States.

Dec. 23.—Gen. Jackson attacked, in the night, about 2,400 of the enemy, on the Mississippi, 9 miles below New Orleans. After killing or wounding 400 of the British he withdrew. The American loss was about 100.

Dec. 24.—Treaty of peace between the United States and Great Britain, signed at Ghent. The articles of the treaty chiefly related to the disputes respecting boundaries, for the determination of which it was agreed that commissioners should be reciprocally appointed.

General Wilkinson repulsed on Canadian frontier and superseded by General Izard.

Hull tried for cowardice and treason at Albany, N. Y., for the surrender of Detroit. He was found guilty of cowardice and sentenced to be shot, but was afterward pardoned by the President.

The Wasp, Capt. Blakely, made a successful cruise, but after capturing thirteen prizes disappeared and was never heard of again. Probably lost in a storm.

Jan. 8.—Battle of New Orleans, Gen. Jackson, in command of 6,000 militia, concentrated his forces about four miles below the city, within a line of entrenchments a mile long, extending from the river far into the swamp. He was attacked in this position by 12,000 British, under command of General Packenham. As the British approached, a terrible cannonade was opened from the American batteries, yet they continued to advance until within rifle range, when volley after volley of deadly storm of lead poured into the ranks of the invaders. The British column soon wavered, General Packenham fell, and the entire British army fled in dismay, leaving 700 dead, and more than 1,000 wounded on the field. The Americans were so safely entrenched that they lost only 7 killed and 6 wounded.

Joseph Bonaparte, brother of the Emperor, came to the United States as Count de Surveilliers, and purchased 1,500 acres of land in Bordentown, N. J., and settled down to the life of an opulent gentleman. In 1830 he returned to France, and died in Florence in 1844.

Feb. 18.—Peace proclaimed by the President of the United States, and a day of thanksgiving to the Almighty was observed throughout the Union.

Feb. 20.—The Constitution, Commodore Stewart, had a severe attack with the British frigate Cyane and sloop-of-war Levant, and captured both.

Feb. 24.—Robert Fulton, inventor of steam navigation, died in New York, aged fifty years.

April.—Massacre of American prisoners at Dartmoor, England.

April 10.—The United States Bank re-chartered for twenty years, with a capital of $35,000,000. The existence of the bank expired with this charter in 1836.

June 17.—Commodore Decatur captures two Algerine vessels and six hundred prisoners.

June 30.—The Dey of Algiers signs a treaty of peace, agreeing to restore all American prisoners to liberty, pay indemnity for all property destroyed, and to relinquish all claims of tribute from the United States.

July.—Commodore Decatur demanded and received $48,000 from the Bashaw of Tunis, in payment for American vessels he allowed the English to capture in his harbor. A demand of $25,000 and restoration of prisoners was made upon the Bashaw of Tripoli, which was complied with. This cruise to the Mediterranean gave full security to American commerce in those seas, and left the United States at peace.

Sept. 9.—John Singleton Copley, American historical painter, died, aged 78 years.

Trouble with the Seminole, Creek Indians, and runaway negroes, who commenced murderous depredations upon the frontier settlements of Georgia and the Alabama territory. General Gaines sent to suppress these outrages.

March 4.—James Monroe inaugurated President at Congress Hall, Washington city, the capitol having been destroyed by the British.

July 4.—Ground was broken for the Erie canal.

July 8.—Remains of General Montgomery, after resting 42 years at Quebec, were brought to the city of New York and placed in a monument in front of St. Paul's church.

Nov.—United States troops take possession of Amelia Island, the rendezvous of the pirates on the Florida coast.

The present flag was established by law—thirteen stripes and as many stars as States, arranged in a circle on a blue ground, a star being added on the Fourth of July after the admission of a new State. And on the whole it is a very graceful and picturesque standard.

Provision is made for the support of the surviving soldiers of the Revolution and their families.

American citizens are accorded by Great Britain a share in the Newfoundland fisheries.

General Jackson pursues the Indians into Florida, takes Pensacola and banishes the Spanish authorities and troops. At St. Mark he captured Alexander Arbuthnot and Robert C. Ambrister, who were tried and found guilty of being the principal emissaries among the southern Indians, inciting them to hostilities. They were both executed.

Fourth census of the United States. Population 9,638,190. National debt, $89,987,427.

Maine admitted as a State.

James Monroe re-elected President.

First Mariner's church erected in New York.

March 22.—Stephen Decatur, an American Naval officer, was killed in a duel with Commodore Barron.

1821.

Aug. 21.—Missouri admitted as a State, with the famous "compromise," under which it was resolved that in future no slave State should be erected north of the northern boundary of Arkansas.

Streets of Baltimore lighted with gas.

Conspiracy of the blacks at Charleston, S. C. The blacks of Charleston had arranged an extensive plot for the indiscriminate massacre of the whites on the night of the 16th of June. This information was conveyed to the Governor, who had the city patrolled on that night with a large military force. The conspirators finding this the case, no revolt was attempted. About 131 of the conspirators were afterwards arrested; 35 of them were executed; 51 acquitted, and the rest were sentenced to be transported.

March 19.—The independence of the South American Government acknowledged by the United States.

Piracy in the West Indies suppressed by the United States.

Boston, Mass., incorporated as a city.

Oct. 3.—Treaty with Columbia.

President Monroe promulgates the doctrine that the United States ought to resist the extension of foreign dominion or influence upon the American continent.

1824.

Aug. 15.—Lafayette re-visits the United States.

March 4.—John Quincy Adams inaugurated President.

Civil war threatened in Georgia. The Federal Government, in consideration of Georgia releasing her claims to portions of the Mississippi territory, agreed to purchase for that State Indian lands within the borders of Georgia. The Indians refused to sell their lands, and the Governor of Georgia was about to drive them out, when the Federal Government interfered on behalf of the Indians. The Indians finally removed to the wilderness of Mississippi.

Napoleon Lucien Charles, nephew of Napoleon I., came to America and married a Yankee schoolmistress. He went to France in 1848, and received the title of Prince of the Imperial Family.

Anti-Mason party and Morgan excitement. William Morgan, of Western New York, announced his intention to publish a book, in which the secrets of Masonry were to be disclosed. He was suddenly seized at Canandaigua, one evening, placed in a carriage, and was never heard of afterward. Some Free masons were charged with his murder, and the report of an investigating committee appointed by the Legislature of New York confirmed the suspicion. An Anti-Mason party was formed, and in 1831 an Anti-Masonic convention was held in Philadelphia, and nominated William Wirt, of Virginia, for President of the United States. Although the party polled a large vote, it soon afterward disappeared.

Feb. 13.—American Temperance Society instituted at Boston.

July 4.—Death of John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, almost at the same hour. They were both members of the committee who had framed the Declaration of Independence; both signed it; both had been Foreign Ministers; both had been Vice Presidents and then Presidents of the United States. Together with their death, it was a singular coincidence.

A national convention was held in Harrisburg, Pa., to discuss the subject of protective tariffs. Only four of the slave States sent delegates. They memorialized Congress for an increase of duties on woolen and cotton fabrics.

May.—Congress passes a tariff bill imposing heavy duties on British goods. It is denounced by the Southern people as oppressive and unconstitutional.

The title of "Democrats" adopted generally by the Republican party.

March 4.—Inauguration of General Andrew Jackson as President, and John C. Calhoun as Vice President.

June 4.—United States steam frigate Fulton blown up at New York; between 30 and 40 persons killed.

May 27.—President Jackson vetoes the Maysville Road bill.

Oct. 5.—The President issued a proclamation declaring the ports of the United States open to British vessels from the West Indies.

1831.

June 10.—King of the Netherlands renders his decision on the boundary question between Maine and the British possessions. Rejected by both parties, and question settled in 1842 by the treaty of Washington.

July 4.—James Monroe dies.

Sept. 21, 22, 23.—Riots in Providence, R. I. Five sailors started out for a cruise, and when they arrived at the foot of Olney's lane, about 8 o'clock in the evening, they met six or seven steamboat men, who said they had a row with the darkies, and asked the sailors to go up and aid them. This party, greatly increased, proceeded up the lane, when they were received with stones thrown from the houses of the blacks. Stones were then thrown by the crowd against the houses. During the melee the darkies fired upon them, killing one man and wounding two others. As soon as it was discovered the following day that a white man was killed by the blacks, it occasioned great excitement, and a mob assembled, when the Sheriff arrested seven and committed them to jail, but in three or four instances the mob made a rescue. On the 23d the mob renewed their attack at Snowtown, stoning and destroying houses. The military were called out to preserve order, but were met with defiance from the mob. Stones were hurled at them with such force by the mob, as to split the stocks of several muskets, and, as a matter of self-protection they were compelled to fire. Four of the rioters were killed and the mob dispersed. A committee of the citizens of Providence appointed to investigate the matter were unanimous in their opinion that the infantry were justified in firing, and that it was strictly in defence of their lives.

Insurrection and massacre in Southampton county, Va. In August about sixty or seventy slaves rose upon the white inhabitants and massacred fifty-five men, women, and children.

Oct. 13.—Anderson, an English vocalist, was driven from the stage of the Park theatre, New York, for disrespectful remarks concerning the United States.

Congress passes a bill rechartering the United States Bank, but on July 10 Jackson vetoes the bill, and the charter expired, by limitation, in 1836.

The tariff act of 1828 produces discontent among the Southern States, and South Carolina declares it null and void, and threatens to resist the collection of duties in the port of Charleston with arms, and secede from the Union if the government persists in enforcing the law.

Black Hawk war commenced. After several skirmishes the Indians were driven from Illinois to beyond the Mississippi. Black Hawk was captured and taken to Washington City, and there to impress his mind with the strength of the nation he had foolishly made war with, he was conducted through several of the Eastern States. This ended the Black Hawk war.

The Morse system of electro-magnetic telegraphy invented.

Cholera in the United States. The epidemic first appeared in New York, June 27. The number of deaths from the 1st of July to the middle of October, when the pestilence ceased, is reported at 4,000. During this time the population was reduced from 225,000, by removals, to 140,000. The ratio of deaths to cases was 1 to 2, and the greatest number dying in one day was 311, on the 21st of July. The first case appeared in Philadelphia, July 5th, and the number of cases to September 13th was 2,314, the number of deaths 935. In Baltimore, the number of deaths to September 29, 710; in Norfolk, to September 11, 400; in Cincinnati, from May 1 to August 7, 1833, 307; in Nashville, from March 27 to July 12, 27 whites and 50 blacks. The disease appeared in New Orleans, October 27, 1832, and raged with great severity among the blacks, occasioning a pecuniary loss to slave owners of nearly four million dollars.

Dec. 10.—President Jackson issues a proclamation denying the right of any State to nullify any act of the Federal Government, and warned the people of South Carolina that the laws of the United States would be strictly enforced by military power, if necessary, and South Carolina was obliged to yield.

Feb. 12.—Tariff dispute settled by the passage of a bill, introduced by Henry Clay, which provided for a gradual reduction of the obnoxious duties during the succeeding ten years.

March 4.—President Jackson inaugurated for a second term.

Oct. 4.—Political riots in Philadelphia.

The President removes the public funds ($10,000,000) from the Bank of the United States. The effect produced was sudden and widespread commercial distress, paralyzing the whole business of the country.

Opponents of Andrew Jackson first call themselves the Whig party.

Cholera again rages in New York.

The President sent General Wiley Thompson to Florida to prepare for a forcible removal of the Seminole Indians if necessary. The tone and manner of Osceola displeased Thompson, and he put him in irons and in prison for a day. The chief feigned penitence, and was released, but his wounded pride called for revenge,

Dec. 16.—A very disastrous fire occurred in New York, destroying 674 buildings in the lower part of the city.
Loss estimated at $20,000,000.

War with Seminole Indians, led by Osceola, in Florida.

Dec. 25.—While Major Dade was marching at the head of 100 men for the relief of Fort Drane, in the interior of Florida, he was attacked, killed, and all but four of his attachment massacred.
On the same day, and only a few hours before, with a small war party, Osceola killed General Thompson and five of his friends who were dining at a store a few yards from Fort King. Osceola scalped General Thompson with his own hands, and thus enjoyed the revenge for the indignity he had suffered in 1834.

March 29.—Pennsylvania newly incorporates the Bank of the United States.

June 15.—Arkansas admitted as a State.

National debt paid off.

Charles Louis Napoleon, the late Emperor of the French, was banished to the United States for attempting to gain the throne of his uncle, the First Consul, by revolutionary means. He landed at Norfolk, in March, 1837, and then came to New York, where he remained until May, when he sailed for Switzerland to see his dying mother.

The Creek Indians aid the Seminoles in their war. They attack mail carriers, stages, steamboats, and finally villages in Georgia and Alabama, until thousands of white people were fleeing for their lives from place to place. The Creeks were finally subdued by Gen. Scott, and several thousand of them were removed to beyond the Mississippi.

1837.

March 4.—Martin Van Buren inaugurated President, and Richard M. Johnson, of Kentucky, Vice-President.

The banks suspend specie payment, and a general panic prevails in business circles. During the months of March and April the failures in New York alone amounted to more than $200,000,000. The effect of these failures was felt all over the Union, and credit and confidence destroyed.

March 6.—Osceola and several chiefs appeared in General Jessup's camp, and signed a treaty of peace, and guaranteed instant departure of the Indians to their new home beyond the Mississippi. Osceola during the summer broke this treaty, and hostilities were again resumed.

Oct. 21.—Osceola, with several chiefs and 70 warriors, appeared the second time in Jessup's camp, under the protection of a flag. They were seized and confined. Osceola was sent to Charleston, where he died of a fever, while confined in Fort Moultrie.

June 25.—Michigan admitted as a State.

Sept. 4.—An extra session of Congress was convened to devise measures to relieve the financial embarrassments of the country, and after a session of 42 days it did but little, except the passage of a bill authorizing the issue of Treasury notes not to exceed the amount of ten million dollars.

Revolutionary movements in Canada, and many Americans assist the insurgents. The steamboat Carolina set on fire by the British, near Schlosser, east of Niagara, on United States territory, and she went over the great cataract in full blaze.

Nov. 7.—Riot at Alton, Ill.; E. P. Lovejoy killed.

Dec. 25.—Col. Taylor (afterward Gen. Taylor and President of the United States), in command of 600 troops, repulsed a large body of Indians on the northern border of Macaco Lake, sometimes called Big Water Lake.

April 18.—Destructive fire in Charleston, S. C.

Proclamation by the President against American citizens aiding the Canadians.

The steamship Sirius, the first to make the western transatlantic passage, arrives at New York from Cork, Ireland, and is followed, on the same day, by the Great Western, from Bristol, England.

The Wilkes exploring expedition to the South Sea sailed.

A treaty was made which appeared to terminate the Indian war, but murder and robberies continued, and it was not until 1842 that peace was finally secured. This war lasted seven years, and cost the United States many valuable lives, and millions of treasure.

Another financial panic, and in October banks suspend specie payment.

July 4.—The Sub-Treasury bill becomes a law. This bill established an independent treasury for the safe keeping of the public funds, and their entire and total separation from banking institutions. Railroad riots in Philadelphia. Population of the United States had now increased since the first year of the republic, from 3,500,000 of all colors, to 17,000,000.

1841.

March 4.—William Henry Harrison inaugurated President, and died April 4th.

April 6.—John Tyler, Vice President, was inaugurated President.

Aug. 9.—Sub-Treasury act repealed and a general bankruptcy bill passed.

Oct. 14.—Alexander MacLeod implicated in the burning of the Caroline in 1837, tried for murder and arson at Utica, N. Y., and acquitted.

Feb. 4.—United States Bank failed and other banks suspended specie payment.

Nov. and Dec.—Affair of the United States brig Creole, which leads to a dispute with England. This vessel, an American, was on her voyage to New Orleans with a cargo of slaves; they mu-tinied, murdered the owner, wounded the captain, and compelled the crew to take the ship to Nassau, New Providence, where the Governor, considering them as

Feb. 28.—A gun on board the steamship Princeton, while on an excursion on the Potomac, burst, killing Abel P.
Upshur, Secretary of State, and Mr. Gilmer, Secretary of the Navy, and several other distinguished gentlemen. The President and many ladies were on board.
Among the killed was Mr. Gardiner, of the State of New York, whose daughter the President soon afterwards married.

Suppression of threatened insurrection in Rhode Island, known as the Dorr Rebellion. Thomas Dorr was elected Governor by the "Suffrage party," and the "Law and Order" party chose Samuel W. King. Dorr was finally arrested, tried, and convicted of treason, and sentenced to imprisonment for life. He was afterwards released, but deprived of all the civil rights of a citizen, and finally these disabilities were removed.

Treaty of commerce with China.

May and July.—Riots and Catholic churches burned in Philadelphia.May 27.—Anti-Rent riots in New York. The tenants on some of the old "patroon" estates had refused to pay rent. It consisted of only "a few bushels of wheat, three or four fat fowl, and a day's work with horses and wagon, per year." The anti-renters considered it illegal, and, disguised as Indians, tarred and feathered those tenants who paid their rents, and even killed officers who served warrants upon them. The disturbances were finally suppressed by the military.

Taylor, with a force of 1,500, for the defence of Texas. At the same time a squadron, under command of Commodore Connor, sailed for the Gulf of Mexico, to protect American interests there.July 19.—Great fire between Broadway, Exchange place, Broad and Stone streets, New York. Loss, $5,000,000.

The Mexican government, by continued depredations upon American vessels and the confiscation of the property of the Americans within her border, brought on a crisis that required a settlement. The United States remonstrated, but the Mexicans continued their depredations, until the amount appropriated by the Mexicans reached more than $6,000,000. The Mexican government finally acknowledged the debt, and agreed to pay it in instalments of $300,000 each. Only three of the instalments were paid, and the Mexican government refused to decide whether she would pay the remainder.

trembled for the safety of Matamoras. Major Brown (in whose honor the fort was named), was mortally wounded.

May 8.—Battle of Palo Alto. Gen. Taylor, with a little over 2,000 troops, met, in battle array, 6,000 Mexicans under Gen. Arista. For five hours a hot contest was maintained, when the Mexicans gave way and fled. American loss in killed and wounded 53. Among the wounded was Capt. Page, of Maine, who afterwards died on the 12th of July; and Major Ringgold, commander of Flying Artillery, who died four days afterward. The Mexicans lost about 600.

May 9.—Battle of Resaca de la Palma. This was a short and bloody conflict, and the Americans were again victorious. American loss in killed and wounded 110; Mexican loss was at least 1,000. Gen. La Vega and 100 men were made prisoners. This was the second battle of the war fought between Gen. Taylor and Gen. Arista. Arista saved himself by solitary flight, and made his way alone across the Rio Grande.

May 13.—Before the battle of Palo Alto and Resaca de Palma were known in the United States, Congress authorized the President to raise 50,000 volunteers, and appropriated $10,000,000 towards carrying on the war.

May 18.—Gen. Taylor drives the Mexican troops from Matamoras and takes possession of the town.

May 30.—Gen. Taylor, as a reward for his skill and bravery, brevetted Major-General.

July.—Americans in California declare themselves independent, and place Gen. Fremont at the head of their affairs.

July 7.—Commodore Sloat bombards and takes possession of the city of Monterey.

July 9.—Commodore Montgomery takes possession of San Francisco.

Aug. 15.—Col. Fremont and Commodore Stockton take possession Los Angeles, California.

Aug. 18.—Gen. Kearney takes possession of Santa Fe, the capital of New Mexico. The Governor and 4,000 Mexican troops fled at his approach, and the people, numbering about 6,000, quietly submitted.

Aug. 22.—Annexation of New Mexico to the United States.

Sept. 21.—Gen. Taylor, now in command of 6,000 men, commenced the siege of Monterey. The city was defended by Gen. Ampudia, and 9,000 troops. The conflict lasted four days, a part of the time within the streets of the city, where the carnage was fearful. Ampudia surrendered. American loss in killed, wounded and missing 561. The number lost by the Mexicans was never ascertained, but it was supposed to be more than 1,000.

October.—Tobasco and Tuspan captured by Com. Perry.

Nov. 14.—Tampico surrenders to Com. Conner.

Nov. 15.—Gen. Worth took possession of Saltillo, capital of Coahuila.

Dec. 22.—Col. Doniphan, in command of 1,000 Missouri volunteers, while on his march to Chihuahua to join Gen. Wool, met a large force of Mexicans at Bracetti, in the valley of the Rio del Norte, under Gen. Ponce de Leon. He sent a black flag to Doniphan with the message "We will neither ask nor give quarters." The Mexicans then advanced and fired three rounds. The Missourians fell upon their faces, and the enemy, supposing them to be all dead, rushed forward for plunder. The Americans suddenly arose, and delivering a deadly fire from their rifles, killed 200 Mexicans and dispersed the remainder in confusion.

Dec. 29.—Gen. Taylor took possession of Victoria, capital of Tamaupilas.

Jan. 19.—A revolt in Mexico against the United States government; Gov. Bent and many other Americans murdered at Fernando de Taos, and massacres occurred in other portions of the country.

Ten thousand Mormons from Illinois, under the leadership of Brigham Young, entered Deseret, now called Utah, and founded Salt Lake City.

Jan. 23.—Col. Price, with 350 men, defeated the insurgents at Canada, and finally dispersed them at the mountain gorge called the Pass of Embudo.

Feb. 23.—Battle of Buena Vista. Gen. Taylor's forces at this battle were only 5,000, while that of the enemy under Santa Anna, numbered 20,000. The Mexican general, assuring Gen. Taylor that he was surrounded, ordered him him to surrender within an hour. Taylor refused, and both armies prepared for battle. It was a desperate and bloody battle, commencing at sunrise and lasting until sunset; but finally the Mexicans fled in confusion, leaving their dead and wounded behind, and the Americans were left masters of the field. Americans lost 267 killed, 456 wounded, and 23 missing. The Mexicans lost almost 2,000. They left 500 of their comrades dead on the field.

Feb. 8.—Gen. Kearney proclaimed the annexation of California to the United States.

Feb. 23.—Captain Webster, with a small party of Americans, drove Gen. Minon, with 800 cavalry, out of Saltillo.

Feb. 28.—Col. Doniphan, when within 18 miles of Chihuahua, was met by 4,000 Mexicans. These he completely routed, losing in killed and wounded only 18 men, while the Mexicans lost about 600. He then pressed forward to the city, entered it in triumph, and raised the American flag upon its citadel (March 2) amidst a population of 40,000, and took possession of the province in the name of government.

March 27.—Surrender of Vera Cruz and castle of San Juan de Ulloa to Gen. Scott and Com. Perry, with 5,000 prisoners and 500 pieces of artillery. The Americans lost 47 killed, and about the same number wounded. It is supposed 1,000 Mexicans were killed, and a great number wounded. During the siege it is estimated that 6,700 shot and shell were thrown by the American batteries, weighing in the aggregate more than 4,000 pounds.

April 18.—Battle of Cerro Gordo. This place was defended by Santa Anna, and 12,000 Mexicans, in a strongly fortified position, and many pieces of cannon. Gen. Scott, with 8,000 Americans, assaulted the enemy, and drove the Mexicans from their position. Santa Anna himself narrowly escaped capture by fleeing upon a mule taken from his carriage. More than 1,000 Mexicans were killed or wounded, and 3,000 made prisoners. Americans lost in killed and wounded 431.

April 21.—Battle of Churubusco. Gen. Scott advanced on Churubusco, where Santa Anna was in command of the main body of the Mexican army. The enemy were defeated, and Santa Anna abandoned the field and fled to the city of Mexico. This defeat to the Mexicans was the final destruction of an army 30,000 strong, by another about one-third its strength in number. Full 4,000 of the Mexicans were killed or wounded, 3,000 made prisoners, and 30 pieces of cannon taken. Americans lost in killed and wounded about 1,100.

April 22.—Gen. Worth takes possession of the castle of Perote. This was considered one of the strongest fortresses in Mexico, yet it was surrendered without resistance. Fifty-four pieces of cannon and mortars were captured here, and a large quantity of munitions of war.

May 15.—Americans take possession of the city of Puebla, a city of 80,000 inhabitants, without opposition.

August 21.—General Scott was now within three miles the city of Mexico, when Santa Anna sent a flag of truce, asking for an armistice, preparatory to negotiations for peace. It was granted, but the propositions of the United States were spurned and scorned, and Santa Anna treacherously violated the armistice by strengthening the defences of the city.

August 21.—Battle of Contreras. General Smith attacked the Mexicans at sunrise, and, after a brief and sanguinary conflict, the Americans were victorious. Eighty officers and 3,000 private soldiers were made prisoners, and thirty-three pieces of artillery were captured. The Mexican force engaged was 6,000, under General Valencia.

Sept. 8.—Battle of El Molinos del Rey. About 4,000 Americans attacked 14,000 Mexicans, under Santa Anna, near Chapultepec. The Americans were at first repulsed with great slaughter, but returning to the attack they fought desperately for an hour, and drove the Mexicans from their position. Both armies suffered dreadfully. The Mexicans lost about 1,000 dead on the field, and the Americans about 800.

Sept. 13.—Battle of Chapultepec. This was the last place to be defended outside the suburbs of the City of Mexico. The Americans, under Gen. Scott, made a furious assault, and routed the enemy with great slaughter, and unfurled the Stars and Stripes over the shattered castle of Chapultepec. The Mexicans fled to the city, pursued by Gen. Quitman to its very gates. That night Santa Anna and his army, with the officers of government, fled the doomed city.

Four expeditions start to explore as many different routes for a railway to the Pacific coast. One under Capt. Gunnison was attacked by the Indians, and Gunnison and several of his party were killed.

July 2.—Capt. Ingraham upholds the rights of American citizenship. Martin Kaszta, while in business at Smyrna, was seized by order of the Austrian consul, and taken on board of an Austrian brig as a rebel refugee, notwithstanding he had proclaimed allegiance to the United States. Capt. Ingraham claimed Kaszta as an American citizen, and on the refusal of the Austrian authorities to give up the prisoner, Ingraham cleared his vessel for action, and threatened to fire on the brig, if he was not delivered up within a given time. The Austrians yielded, and Kaszta placed in the custody of the French consul to await the action of the respective governments. He was finally given up to the United States.

Piano Fortes,

These matchless instruments have been before the public for the last thirty years, and the manufacturers respectfully refer to any or all who have one in possession for a guarantee of their goodness.

With no parade, with but a simple desire and determination to make an honest Piano, they have successfully vanquished every acoustic and mechanical difficulty as it has presented itself.

Their reputation for GOOD WORK remains unchanged, and their PIANOS are a fitting monument of the years of toilsome thought that have been spent on them.

They stand to day the OLDEST MANUFACTURERS of the PIANO FORTE in business experience, in this country.

GOLD MEDALPIANOS.*PIANOS.*GOLD MEDAL

The McPhail Pianos are used in most of the leading Institutions in the United States, and are endorsed by more than a thousand musicians of the highest rank in the profession, among whom are Prof. J. K. Paine, Dudley Buck, Carlyle Petersilea, Hugo Leonhard, Kriessman, Schultze, Ryder, Ryan, Baker, Miss Kellogg, &c., &c., all of whom pronounce the McPhail Piano equal to the best made in the country. Thoroughly first-class in tone, workmanship, and general style of finish, they have been put in competition with pianos of the highest reputation, and have always stood the test in a most satisfactory manner. They have received, during the past twenty years, from state and county fairs, societies, and other public bodies, Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals, Diplomas, &c., the highest premiums over all competitors, for unsurpassed excellence of workmanship, unrivalled action, and great superiority in sweetness, power, and evenness of tone. Individual testimonials without number, also, have been received from the most distinguished musical, literary, and scientific artists, teachers, and professionals from all parts of the world.

cepted, but sent goods in great profusion for the international display. Foreign industries make up three-fifths of the display in the Main building, and perhaps four-fifths in the Art Department, and a large proportion in every other department.

The President and Cabinet, the Diplomatic Corps, the Senate and House of Representatives, together with Commissioners from every State in the Union, were present at the opening. Dom Pedro, the Emperor of Brazil, was present.

The Army and Navy was largely represented from the highest rank to the private in line. It is estimated that over 300,000 persons were on the ground, and the receipts amounted to $75,000.

The following is a comparative statement of the space occupied by the different world's exhibitions since 1850:

FICTITIOUS NAMES

STATES, CITIES, NOTED PERSONS, &c.

Albany Regency.—A name popularly given in the United States to a junto of astute Democratic politicians, having their headquarters at Albany, N. Y., who controlled the action of the Democratic party for many years, and who had great weight in national politics. The effort to elect Wm. H. Crawford President, instead of John Quincy Adams, was their first great struggle.

Badger State.—A name given to Wisconsin.

Bay State.—A popular name of Massachusetts, which, previous to the adoption of the Federal Constitution, was called the Colony of Massachusetts.

Bayou State.—A namesometimes given so the State of Mississippi, which abounds in bayous or creeks.

Bear State.—A name by which the State of Arkansas is sometimes designated on account of the number of bears that infest its forests.

Battle of the Kegs.—The subject and title of a mock heroic poem, by Francis Hopkinson. This ballad, very famous in Revolutionary times, was occasioned by the following incident. Certain machines in the form of kegs, charged with gunpowder, were sent down the river to annoy the British shipping then at Philadelphia. The danger of these machines being discovered, the British manned the wharves and shipping, and discharged their small arms and cannons at everything they saw floating on the river during the ebb tide.

Blue Hen, The.—A cant or popular name for the State of Delaware. This sobriquet is said to have had its origin in a certain Captain Caldwell's fondness for the amusement of cock-fighting. Caldwell was an officer in the 1st Delaware regiment in the war of the Revolution, and was greatly distinguished for his daring and bravery. He was exceedingly popular in the regiment, and its high state of discipline was generally conceded to be due to his exertions; so that when officers were sent on recruiting service to fill vacancies occasioned by death or otherwise, it was a saying that they had gone home for more of Caldwell's game-cocks; but as Caldwell insisted that no cock could be truly game unless the mother was a Blue Hen, the expression Blue Hen's chickens was substituted for game-cocks.

Bluff City.—A descriptive name applied to the city of Hannibal, Mo.

Boston Massacre.—A name popularly given to a disturbance which occurred in the streets of Boston, on the evening of March 5th, 1770, when a sergeant's guard belonging to the British garrison fired upon a crowd of people who were surrounding them, and pelting them with snow-balls, and killed three men, besides wounding several others. The leader of the town-people was a black man, named Crispus Attucks.

Boston Tea Party.—A name given to the famous assemblage of citizens in Boston, December 16, 1773, who met to carry out the non-importation resolves of the colony, and who, disguised as Indians, went on board three ships, which just arrived in the harbor, and destroyed several hundred chests of tea. The British Parliament retaliated by closing the port of Boston.

Brother Jonathan.—A sportive collective name for the people of the United States, originating as follows:—When General Washington, after being appointed commander of the army, went to Massachusetts to organize it and make preparations for the defence of the country, he found a great want of ammunition and other means necessary to meet the powerful foe he had to contend with, and great difficulty in obtaining them. If attacked in such conditions the cause at once might be hopeless. On one occasion, at that anxious period, a consultation of the officers and others was had, when it seemed no way could be devised to make such preparation as was necessary. His excellency Jonathan Trumbull, the elder, was then Governor of Connecticut, and, as Washington placed the greatest reliance on his judgment and aid, he remarked, "We must consult Brother Jonathan on the subject." He did so, and the Governor was successful in supplying many of the wants of the army. The origin of the expression being soon lost sight of, the name Brother Jonathan came to be regarded as the national sobriquet.

Buckeye State.—The State of Ohio, so-called from the Buckeye tree, which abounds there.

City of Brotherly Love.—Philadelphia is sometimes so-called, this being the literal signification of the name.

City of Churches.—A name popularly given to the city of Brooklyn, N. Y., from the unusually large number of churches which it contains.

City of Elms.—A familiar denomination of New Haven, Conn., many of the streets of which are thickly shaded with lofty elms.

City of Magnificent Distances.—A popular designation given to the city of Washington, the capital of the United States, which is laid out on a very large scale, being extended to cover a space four miles and a half long, and two miles and a half broad, or eleven square miles. The entire site is traversed by two sets of streets from 70 to 100 feet wide, at right angles to one another, the whole again intersected obliquely by fifteen avenues from 130 to 160 feet wide.

City of Rocks.—A descriptive name popularly given in the United States to the city of Nashville, Tenn.

City of Spindles.—A name popularly given to the city of Lowell, Mass., the largest cotton manufacturing town in the United States.

City of the Straits.—A name given to Detroit, which is situated on the west bank of the river or strait connecting Lake St. Clair with Lake Erie. Detroit is a French word, meaning "strait."

Corn-cracker.—A popular nickname or designation for the State of Kentucky. The inhabitants of the State are often called Corn-crackers.

Cow-boys.—A band of marauders in the time of American revolution, consisting mostly of refugees who adhered to the British side, and who infested the so-called "neutral grounds," lying between the American and British lines, plundering all those who had taken the oath of allegiance to the Continental Congress.

(See SKINNERS.)

Cradle of Liberty.—A popular name given to Faneuil Hall, a large public edifice in Boston, Mass.; celebrated as being the place where the orators of the Revolution roused the people to resistance to British oppression.

Creole State.—A name sometimes given to the State of Louisiana, in which the descendants of the original French and Spanish settlers constitute a large proportion of the population.

Crescent City.—A popular name for the city of New Orleans, the older portion of which is built around the convex side of a bend of the Mississippi river. In the progress of its growth up stream, however, the city has now so extended itself as to fill the hollow of a curve in the opposite direction, so that the river front presents an outline resembling the character S.

Empire City.—The city of New York, the chief city of the western world, and the metropolis of the Empire State.

Empire State, The.—A popular name of the State of New York, the most populous and the wealthiest state in the Union.

Excelsior State.—The State of New York, sometimes so called for the motto "Excelsior" upon its coat of arms.

Fall City.—Louisville, Ky., popularly so called from the falls which, at this place, impede the navigation of the Ohio river.

Father of Waters.—A popular name given to the Mississippi river, on account of its great length (3,160 miles) and the very large number of its tributaries, of which the Red, the Arkansas, the Ohio, the Missouri, the Illinois, the Des Moines, the Wisconsin, and the St. Peters or Minnesota, are the most important. The literal signification of the name, which is of Indian origin, is said to be Great River.

Fern, Fanny.—A pseudonym adopted by Mrs. Sarah P.arton (born 1811), a popular American authoress.

Flour City.—A popular designation in the United States of the city of Rochester, N. Y. A place remarkable for its extensive manufactories of flour.

1876.

Flower City—Springfield, Illinois, the capital of the State, which is distinguished for the beauty of its surroundings.

Forest City.—1. Cleveland, Ohio—so called from the many ornamental trees with which the streets are bordered. 2. A name given to Portland, Maine; a city distinguished for its many elms and other beautiful shade trees.

Freestone State.—The State of Connecticut; sometimes so called from the quarries of freestone which it contains.

Funk, Peter.—A person employed at petty auctions to bid on articles put up for sale, in order to raise their prices; probably so called from such a name having frequently been given when articles were bought in. To funk, or funk out, is a vulgar expression, meaning to slink away; to take one's self off. In some localities it conveys the added notion of great fear.

Garden City.—A popular name for Chicago; a city which is remarkable for the number and beauty of its private gardens.

Garden of the West.—A name usually given to Kansas, but sometimes applied to Illinois and others of the Western States, which are all noted for their productivity.

Garden of the World.—A name frequently given to the vast country comprising more than 1,200,000 square miles which is drained by the Mississippi river and its tributaries—a region of almost unexampled fertility.

Gate City.—Keokuk, Iowa—popularly so-called. It is situated at the foot of the lower rapids of the Mississippi river (which extends twelve miles with a fall of twenty-four feet,) and is the natural head of navigation. A portion of the city is built on a bluff one hundred and fifty feet high.

Gotham.—A popular name of the City of New York, first given to it in "Salmagundi" (a humorous work by Washington Irving, and William Irving, and James K. Paulding,) because the inhabitants were such wiseacres.

Granite State.—A popular name for the State of New Hampshire, the mountainous portions of which are largely composed of granite.

Green Mountain State.—A popular name of Vermont, the Green Mountains being the principal mountain range in the State.

Grundy, Mrs.—A person frequently referred to in Morton's comedy "Speed the Plow," but not introduced as one of the dramatis personæ. The solicitude of Dame Ashfield in this play, as to what will Mrs. Grundy say, has given the latter great celebrity, the interrogatory having acquired a proverbial currency.

Hamilton, Gail.—A pseudonym adopted by Miss Mary Abigail Dodge of Hamilton, Mass., a popular American writer of the present day.

Hawkeye State.—The State of Iowa: said to be so named after an Indian chief, who was once a terror to voyagers to its borders.

Hoosier State.—The State of Indiana, the inhabitants of which are often called Hoosiers. This word is a corruption of husher, formerly a common term for a bully throughout the West.

Hub of the Universe.—A burlesque and popular designation of Boston, Mass., originating with the American humorist, O. W. Holmes.

Iron City.—A name popularly given in the United States to Pittsburgh, Pa., a city distinguished for its numerous and immense iron manufactures.

Ketch, Jack.—A hangman or executioner; so called in England, from one John Ketch, a wretch who lived in the time of James II., and made himself universally odious by the butchery of many brave and noble victims, particularly those sentenced to death by the infamous Jeffreys during the "Bloody Assizes." The name is thought by some to be derived from Richard Jacquett, who held the manor of Tyburn, near London, where criminals were formerly executed.

Keystone State.—The State of Pennsylvania; so called from its having been the central State of the Union at the time of the formation of the Constitution. If the names of the thirteen original States are arranged in the form of an arch, Pennsylvania will occupy the place of the keystone.

King Cotton.—A popular personification of the great staple production of the Southern States of America. The supremacy of cotton seems to have been first asserted by the Hon. James H. Hammond of South Carolina, in a speech delivered by him in the Senate of the United States, on the 4th of March, 1858.

Kitchen Cabinet.—A name sportively given, in the United States, to the Hon. Francis P. Blair and the Hon. Amos Kendall, by the opponents of President Jackson's administration. Blair was the editor of The Globe, the organ of the President, and Kendall was one of the principal contributors to the paper. As it was necessary for Jackson to consult frequently with those gentlemen, and as, to avoid observation, they were accustomed, when they called upon him, to go in by a back door, the Whig party styled them, in derision, the "Kitchen Cabinet," alleging that it was by their advice that the President removed so many Whigs from office and put Democrats in their place.

Lake State.—A name popularly given to the State of Michigan, which borders upon the four lakes—Superior, Michigan, Huron, and Erie.

Land of Steady Habits.—A name by which the State of Connecticut is sometimes designated, in allusion to the moral character of its inhabitants.

Learned Blacksmith.—An epithet sometimes applied to Elihu Burritt (born 1811), who began life as a blacksmith, and afterward distinguished himself as a linguist.

Lion of the Sea.—A name formerly given to the Cape of Good Hope.

Little Giant.—A popular sobriquet conferred upon the Hon. Stephen A. Douglass, a distinguished American statesman (born 1813, died 1861), in allusion to the disparity between his physical and intellectual proportions.

Little Magician.—A sobriquet conferred upon the Hon. Martin Van Buren, President of the United States from 1837 to 1841, in allusion to his supposed political sagacity and talent.

Lone Star State.—The State of Texas, so-called from the device on its coat of arms.

Lumber State.—The State of Maine, the inhabitants of which are largely engaged in the business of cutting and rafting lumber, or of converting it into boards, shingles, scantling, and the like.

Mad Anthony.—A sobriquet of Maj. Gen. Anthony Wayne, distinguished for his military skill and impetuous bravery in the war of the Revolution.

Mason and Dixon's Line.—A name given to the southern boundary of the free State of Pennsylvania, which formerly separated it from the slave States of Maryland and Virginia. It lies in latitude $39^{\circ} 43' 26.3''$, and was run, with the exception of about twenty-two miles, by Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, two English mathematicians and surveyors, between Nov. 15, 1763, and Dec. 26, 1767. During the exciting debates in Congress in 1820, on the question of excluding slavery from the State of Missouri, the eccentric John Randolph, of Roanoke, made great use of the phrase, which was caught up and re-echoed by every newspaper in the land, and thus gained a celebrity which it still retains.

Mill-boy of the Slashes.—A sobriquet conferred upon Henry Clay (1777-1852) a distinguished American orator and statesman, who was born in the neighborhood of a place in Hanover county, Virginia, known as the slashes (a local term for a low, swampy country) where there was a mill, to which he was often sent on errands when a boy.

Monumental City.—The city of Baltimore, so called from the monuments it contains.

Mormon.—The last of a pretended line of Hebrew prophets, existing among a race of Israelites, principally the descendants of Joseph, who are fabled to have emigrated from Jerusalem to America about six hundred years before Christ. This imaginary prophet is said to have written the book called "The Book of Mormon," which contains doctrines upon which the "Mormons," or "Latter Day Saints" found their faith; but the real author was one Solomon Spalding, (born 1761 and died 1816) an inveterate scribbler, who had in early life been a clergyman. The work fell into the hands of Joseph Smith, who claimed it as a direct revelation to himself from heaven, and, taking it as his text and authority, began to preach the new gospel of "Mormonism."

Mother of Presidents.—A name frequently given to the State of Virginia, which has furnished six Presidents to the Union.

Mother of States.—A name sometimes given to Virginia, the first settled of the thirteen states which united in the Declaration of Independence.

Mound City.—A name given to St. Louis on account of the numerous artificial mounds that occupied the site on which the city is built.

Nutmeg State.—A popular name for the State of Connecticut, the inhabitants of which have such a reputation for shrewdness that they have been jeocosely accused of palming off wooden nutmegs on unsuspecting purchasers, instead of the genuine article.

Old Bullion.—A sobriquet conferred on Colonel Thomas H. Benton (1782-1852), a distinguished American statesman, on account of his advocacy of a gold and silver currency as the true remedy for the financial embarrassments in which the United States were involved after the expiration of the charter of the national bank, and as the only proper medium for government disbursements and receipts.

Old Colony.—A name given to that portion of Massachusetts included within the original limits of the Plymouth colony, which was formed at an earlier date than the colony of Massachusetts Bay. In 1692 the two colonies were united in one province, bearing the name of the latter, and at the formation of the Federal Union became the State of Massachusetts.

Old Dominion.—A name given to the State of Virginia.

Old Hickory.—A sobriquet conferred upon General Jackson, in 1813, by the soldiers under his command.

Old Hunkers.—A nick-name applied to the ultra-conservative portion of the Democratic party in the United States, and especially in the State of New York.

Old Ironsides.—A title popularly conferred upon the United States frigate Constitution, which was launched at Boston, September 20, 1797. She became greatly celebrated on account of the prominent part she took in the bombardment of Tripoli, in 1804, and for the gallantry she displayed during the war of 1812. She is still in service.

Old North State.—A name by which the State of North Carolina is sometimes known.

Old Public Functionary.—A name given to James Buchanan, fifteenth President of the United States. He first applied the expression to himself in his annual message to Congress, in the year 1859. Sometimes humorously abbreviated O. P. F.

Old Wagon.—A sobriquet given to the frigate United States, which was launched at Philadelphia, in 1797, and was afterward rebuilt on the original model. She got her nick-name previous to the war of 1812, from her dull sailing qualities, which were subsequently very much improved.

Old-style Jonathan.—A nom de plume of Washington Irving, under which he contributed, in 1802, to the Morning Chronicle, a Democratic Journal of New York city.

Palmetto State.—The State of South Carolina, so-called from the arms of the State, which contain a palmetto.

Panhandle, The.—A fanciful and cant name given to the most northerly portion of the State of West Virginia, a long narrow projection between the Ohio river and the western boundary of Pennsylvania.

Partington, Mrs.—An imaginary old lady whose laughable sayings have been recorded by the American humorist, B. P. Shillaber. She is distinguished, like Smollett's "Tabitha Bramble," and Sheridan's "Mrs. Malaprop," for her amusing affectation and misuse of learned words.

Pathfinder of the Rocky Mountains.—A title applied to Major-General John C. Fremont, who conducted four exploring expeditions across the Rocky Mountains.

Pennsylvania Farmer.—A surname given to John Dickinson (1732-1808), an American statesman and author, and a citizen of Pennsylvania. In the year 1768 he published his "Letters from a Pennsylvania Farmer to the Inhabitants of the British Colonies." These were republished in London, with a preface by Dr. Franklin, and were subsequently translated into French and published in Paris.

Pine Tree State.—A popular name of the State of Maine, the central and northern portion of which are covered with extensive pine forests.

Poor Richard.—The feigned author of a series of almanacs (commenced in 1732 and continued for twenty-five years) really written by Benjamin Franklin, and distinguished for their circulation of the prudential virtues, as temperance, frugality, order, justice, cleanliness, charity, and the like, by means of maxims or precepts, which, it has been said, "are as valuable as anything that has descended from Pythagoras."—See Saunders, Richard.

Prairie State.—A name given to Illinois in allusion to the wide-spread and beautiful prairies, which form a striking feature of the scenery of the State.

Puritan City.—A name sometimes given to the city of Boston, Mass., in allusion to the character of its founders and early inhabitants.

Quaker City.—A popular name of Philadelphia, which was planned and settled by William Penn, accompanied by a colony of English Friends.

Queen City of the Lakes.—A name sometimes given to the city of Buffalo, N. Y., from its position and importance.

Railroad City.—Indianapolis, the capital of the State of Indiana, is sometimes called by this name, as being the terminus of various railroads.

Rail-Splitter.—A cant designation of Abraham Lincoln, the sixteenth President of the United States, who is said to have supported himself for one winter, in early life, by splitting rails for a farmer.

Red-Coats.—The name given by the Americans in the Revolutionary War to the British soldiery, in allusion to their scarlet uniform.

Regulators.—The popular name of a party in North Carolina, which arose in 1768, and had for its object the forcible redress of public grievances.

Rhody, Little.—A popular designation of Rhode Island, the smallest State in the Union.

Rough and Ready.—A sobriquet given to General Zachary Taylor (born 1790—died 1850), twelfth President of the United States, as expressive of prominent traits in his character.

St. Nicholas.—The patron saint of boys. He is said to have been Bishop of Myra, and to have died in the year 326. The young were universally taught to revere him, and the popular fictions which represent him as the bearer of presents to children on Christmas Eve is well known. He is the Santa Claus (or Klaus) of the Dutch.

Sam.—A popular synonym in the United States for the Know-nothings or Native American party. The name involves an allusion to Uncle Sam, the common personification of the United States Government.

Sambo.—A cant designation of the negro race. No race has ever shown such capabilities of adaptation to varying soil and circumstances as the negro. Alike to them the snows of Canada, the hard, rocky land of New England, or the gorgeous profusion of the Southern States. Sambo and Cuffy expand under them all.

Saunders, Richard.—A feigned name under which Dr. Franklin in 1732, commenced the publication of an Almanac—commonly called "Poor Richard's Almanac," of which the distinguished feature was a series of maxims of prudence and industry in the form of proverbs.

Scarlet Woman, The.—In the controversial writings of the Protestants, a common designation of the Church of Rome, intended to symbolize its vices and corruptions. The allusion is to the description contained in Revelation, chapter xvi: 1-6.

Seven Sleepers.—According to a very widely diffused legend of early Christianity, seven noble youths of Ephesus, in the time of the Decian persecution, who, having fled to a certain cavern for refuge, and having been pursued, discovered, and walled in for a cruel death, were made to fall asleep, and in that state were miraculously kept for almost two centuries. Their names are traditionally said to have been, Maximican, Malchus, Martinian, Denis, John, Scrapton, and Constantine. The Church has consecrated the 27th of June to their memory. The Koran relates the tale of the seven sleepers, deriving it probably from the same source as the Christian legend, and declares that out of respect for them the sun altered his course twice a day that he might shine into the cavern.

Seven Wonders of the World, The.—A name given to seven very remarkable objects of the ancient world, which have been variously enumerated. The following classification is one of the most generally received: 1. The Pyramids of Egypt; 2. The Pharos of Alexander; 3. The walls and hanging gardens of Babylon; 4. The Temple of Diana at Ephesus; 5. The statue of the Olympian Jupiter; 6. The Mausoleum of Artemisia; 7. The Colossus of Rhodes.

Skimmers.—A name assumed by a predatory band in the revolutionary war, who, professing allegiance to the American cause, but influenced by a desire to plunder, roamed over the "neutral ground," lying between the hostile armies, robbing those who refused to take the oath of fidelity.

Slick, Sam.—The title and hero of various humorous narratives, illustrating and exaggerating the peculiarities of the Yankee character and dialect, written by Judge Thomas C. Haliburton, of Nova Scotia. Sam Slick is represented as a Yankee clockmaker and peddler, full of quaint drollery, unsophisticated wit, knowledge of human nature, and aptitude in the use of what he calls "soft sawder."

Smoky City.—A name sometimes given to Pittsburgh, Pa., an important manufacturing city. The use of bituminous coal occasions dense volumes of smoke to fill the air in and around the place, soiling the garments of passengers, and giving the buildings a dark and sooty appearance.

Stonewall Jackson.—A sobriquet given, during the American civil war, to Thomas Jonathan Jackson (born 1824, died 1863), a general in the service of the Confederate States. This famous appellation had its origin in an expression used by the Confederate General Lee, on trying to rally his men at the battle of Bull Run, July 21, 1862—"There is Jackson standing like a stone wall." From that day he was known as Stonewall Jackson, and his command as the Stonewall Brigade.

Sucker State.—A cant name given in America to the State of Illinois, the inhabitants of which are very generally called Suckers throughout the west. The origin of this term is said to be as follows: The western prairies are in many places full of the holes made by the crawfish (a fresh-water shell-fish, similar in form to the lobster), which descend to the water beneath. In early times, when travelers wended their way over these immense plains, they very prudently provided themselves with a long hollow reed, and when thirsty thrust it into these natural artesian wells, and thus easily supplied their longings. crawfish well generally contains pure water, and the manner in which the traveler drew forth the refreshing element gave him the name of Sucker.

Swedish Nightingale.—A name popularly given to Jenny Lind (Madame Goldschmidt, born 1821), a native of Stockholm, and the most celebrated of female vocalists.

Tammany, St.—The name of an Indian Chief who, in the United States, has been popularly canonized as a saint, and adopted as the tutelary genius of one branch of the Democratic party. Tammany was of the Delaware nation, and lived probably in the middle of the seventeenth century. He resided in the country which is now Delaware until he was of age, when he moved beyond the Alleghanies, and settled on the banks of the Ohio. He became chief sachem of his tribe, and being always a friend of the whites, often restrained his warriors from deeds of violence. His rule was always discreet, and he endeavored to induce his followers to cultivate agriculture and the arts of peace, rather than those of war. When he became old he called a council to have a successor appointed, after which the residue of his life was spent in retirement, and tradition relates that "young and old repaired to his wigwam to hear him discourse wisdom." His great motto was, "Unite in peace for happiness, in war for defence." When and by whom he was first styled saint, or by what whim he was chosen to be the patron of Democracy, does not appear.

Tippecanoe.—A sobriquet conferred upon General William H. Harrison, afterward President of the United States, during the political canvass which preceded his election, on account of the victory gained by him over the Indians in the battle which took place on the 6th of November 1811, at the junction of the Tippecanoe and Wabash rivers.

Topsy.—A young slave girl in Mrs. Stowe's novel "Uncle Tom's Cabin," who is made to illustrate the ignorance, low moral development, and wild humor of the African character, as well as its capacity for education.

Turpentine State.—A popular name for the State of North Carolina, which produces and exports immense quantities of turpentine.

Uncle Sam.—A cant or vulgar name of the United States Government. Immediately after the last declaration of war with England, Elbert Anderson, of New York, then a contractor, visited Troy, on the Hudson, where was concentrated, and where he purchased a large contract of provisions, beef, pork, &c.

The inspectors of these articles, at the place, were Messrs. Ebenezer and Samuel Wilson. The latter gentleman (invariably known as "Uncle Sam") generally superintended in person a large number of workmen, who, on this occasion, were employed in overhauling the provisions purchased by the contractors of the army. The casks were marked E. A.—U. S. This work fell to the lot of a facetious fellow in the employ of the Messrs. Wilson, who, on being asked by some of his fellow-workmen the meaning of the mark (for the letters U. S., for United States were then almost entirely new to them) said he did not know, unless it meant Elbert Anderson and "Uncle Sam," alluding exclusively to the said "Uncle Sam" Wilson. The joke took among the workmen, and passed currently; and "Uncle Sam" himself being present, was occasionally rallied by them on the increasing extent of his possessions. Many of these workmen, being of a character denominated "fond of powder," were found, shortly after, following the recruiting drum, and pushing toward the frontier lines, for the double purpose of meeting the enemy and of eating the provisions they had lately labored to put in good order. Their old jokes accompanied them, and before the first campaign ended, this identical one first appeared in print; it gained favor rapidly till it penetrated, and was recognized in every part of the country, and will, no doubt, continue so while the United States remain a nation.

Underground Railroad, The.—A popular embodiment of the various ways in which fugitive slaves from the Southern States were assisted in escaping to the North, or to Canada; often humorously abbreviated U. G. R. R.

Wagoner Boy, The.—A sobriquet of the Hon. Thomas Corwin (born 1794), a distinguished American statesman. While yet a lad, Harrison and his army were on the northern frontier, almost destitute of provisions, and a demand was made on the patriotism of the people to furnish the necessary subsistence. The elder Corwin loaded a wagon with supplies, which was delivered by his son, who remained with the army during the rest of the campaign, and who is said to have proved himself "a good whip and an excellent reinsman."

Western Reserve, The.—A name popularly given to a region of country reserved by the State of Connecticut at the time of the cession of the Northwest Territory to the United States. Dispute arose, after the war of the Revolution, between several of the States respecting the right of soil in their territory which were only allayed by the cession of the whole to the United States, Connecticut reserving a tract of 3,666,921 acres near Lake Erie. In 1800, jurisdiction over this tract was relinquished to the Federal Government, the State reserving the right to the soil to settlers, while the Indian titles to the rest of the soil were brought up by the general government. In 1799 the Northwestern Territory, over which Congress had exercised jurisdiction since 1787, was admitted to a second grade of territorial government. Shortly after, Ohio was detached from it, and erected into an independent territory, and in 1803 it was received as a State into the Union.

White House, The.—In the United States a name properly given to the executive or 'presidential mansion at Washington, which is a large building of freestone, painted white.

Wicked Bible.—A name given to an edition of the Bible published in 1632 by Baker & Lucas, because the word not was omitted in the seventh commandment. The printers were called before the High Commission, fined heavily, and the whole impression destroyed.

Wolverine State, The.—The State of Michigan; popularly so called for its abounding with wolverines.

Yellow Jack.—Among sailors a common personification of the yellow fever. Although used as a proper name, it is probable that the original meaning of the appellation was nothing more than yellow flag; a flag being termed jack by seamen, and yellow being the color of that customarily displayed from lazarettoes, or naval hospitals, and from vessels in quarantine.

Young America.—A popular collective name for American youth, or a personification of their supposed characteristics.

SKETCHES

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

(FIRST PRESIDENT.—TWO TERMS.)

GEORGE WASHINGTON was born on the Potomac river, in Westmoreland county, Virginia, February 22d, 1732, and died December 14, 1799. He was inaugurated first President of the United States, April 30, 1789; and, being re-elected, he held the office until 1797. In 1788 and in 1792 he was again chosen President of the United States, but, conceiving it to be a dangerous precedent to serve more than two terms, he patriotically declined a third election. In early life he followed the occupation of an engineer. He was married to Mrs. Martha Custis, in January, 1759. Congress unanimously elected him commander of the revolutionary forces, and he took active command July 2, 1775, and held supreme military control throughout the struggle for independence.

Washington was left fatherless at eleven years of age; his education was directed by his mother, a woman of strong character, who kindly, but firmly, exacted the most implicit obedience. Of her Washington learned his first lessons of self-command. His favorite amusements were of a military character; he made soldiers of his playmates, and officered all the mock parades. His inherited wealth was great, and the antiquity of his family gave him high social rank. On his Potomac farms he had hundreds of slaves, and at his Mount Vernon home he was like the prince of a wide domain, free from dependence or restraint. He was fond of equipage and the appurtenances of high life. Although he always rode on horseback, his family had a "chariot and four," with "black postilions in scarlet and white livery." This generous style of living, added perhaps to his native reserve, exposed him to the charge of aristocratic feeling. While at his home, he spent much of his time in riding and hunting. He rose early, ate his breakfast of corn-cake, honey, and tea, and then rode about his estates. He spent his evenings with his family around the blazing hearth, retiring between nine and ten. He loved to linger at the table, cracking nuts and relating his adventures. In personal appearance, Washington was over six feet in height, robust, graceful, and perfectly erect. His manner was formal and dignified. He was more solid than brilliant, and had more judgment than genius. He had great dread of public life, cared little for books, and had no library. Washington was a consistent Christian, and a regular attendant of the Episcopal church, of which he was a communicant. He was a firm advocate of free institutions, but believed in a strong government and strictly enforced laws. As a President, he carefully weighed his decisions, but, his policy once settled, he pursued it with steadiness and dignity, however great might be the opposition. As an officer, he was brave, enterprising, and cautious. His campaigns were rarely startling, but they were always judicious. He was capable of great endurance. Calm in defeat, sober in victory, commanding at all times, but irresistible when aroused, he exercised equal authority over himself and his army. His last illness was very brief, and his closing hours were marked by his usual calmness and dignity. "I die hard," he said, "but I am not afraid to go." Europe and America vied in tributes to his memory. Said Lord Brougham, "Until time shall be no more, a test of the progress which our race has made in wisdom and virtue will be derived from the veneration paid to the immortal name of Washington." Washington left no children. It has been beautifully said, "Providence left him childless that his country might call him Father."

JOHN ADAMS.

(SECOND PRESIDENT.)

JOHN ADAMS was born in Braintree, Mass., October 19th, 1735, and died 1826. He served as President of the United States from 1797 to 1801. He was a member of the first and second Congress, and nominated Washington as commander-in-chief. Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence, but Adams secured its adoption in a three-days debate. He was a tireless worker and had the reputation of having the clearest head and firmest heart of any man in Congress. In his position as President he lost the reputation he had gained as Congressman. His enemies accused him of being a bad judge of men, of clinging to old unpopular notions, and of having little control over his temper. They also ridiculed his egotism, which they declared to be inordinate. He lived, however, to see the prejudice against his administration give place to a juster estimate of his great worth and exalted integrity. As a delegate to the Constitutional Convention he was honored as one of the fathers of the republic. Adams and Jefferson were firm friends during the Revolution, but political strife alienated them. On their return to private life they became reconciled. They died on the same day—the fiftieth anniversary of American independence. Adams's last words were, "Thomas Jefferson still survives." Jefferson was, however, already lying dead in his Virginia home. Thus, by the passing away of these two remarkable men, was made memorable the 4th of July, 1826.

THOMAS JEFFERSON.

(THIRD PRESIDENT.)

THOMAS JEFFERSON was born at Shadwell, Virginia, April 2d, 1743; and died July 4th, 1826. After graduating from William and Mary College, he adopted the profession of the law.

"Of all the public men who have figured in the United States," says Parton, "he was incomparably the best scholar and the most variously accomplished man." He was a bold horseman, a skillful hunter, an elegant penman, a fine violinist, a brilliant talker, a superior classical scholar, and a proficient in the modern languages. On account of his talent, he was styled "The Sage of Monticello." The immortal document, the Declaration of Independence, was, with the exception of a few words, entirely his work. He was an ardent supporter of the doctrine of State rights, and led the opposition to the Federalists. After he became President, however, he found the difficulty of administering the government upon that theory. "The executive authority had to be stretched until it cracked, to cover the purchase of Louisiana;" and he became convinced on other occasions that the federal government, to use his own expression, "must show its teeth." Like Washington, he was of aristocratic birth, but his principles were intensely democratic. He hated ceremonies and titles; even "Mr." was distasteful to him. These traits were the more remarkable to one of his superior birth and education, and peculiarly endeared him to the common people. Coming into power on a wave of popularity, he studiously sought to retain this favor. There were no more brilliant levees or courtly ceremonies as in the days of Washington and Adams. On his inauguration day he rode down to Congress unattended, and, leaping from his horse, hitched it, and went into the chamber dressed in plain clothes, to read his fifteen-minutes inaugural. Some of the sentences of that short but memorable address have passed into proverbs. The unostentatious example thus set by the nation's President was wise in its effects. Soon the public debt was diminished, the army and navy reduced, and the Treasury replenished. A man of such marked character necessarily made bitter enemies, but Jefferson commanded the respect of even his opponents, while the admiration of his friends was unbounded. The last seventeen years of his life were passed at Monticello, near the place of his birth. By his profuse hospitality he had, before his death, spent his vast estates. He died poor in money, but rich in honor. His last words were, "This is the fourth day of July."

JAMES MADISON.

(FOURTH PRESIDENT.—TWO TERMS.)

JAMES MADISON was born in King George county, Virginia, March 16, 1751, and died in 1836. He graduated at Princeton College in 1771, after which he studied law; and from 1800 to 1817 he was President of the United States. In Congress in 1789 he became one of the strongest advocates of the Constitution, and did much to secure its adoption. From his political principles he was obliged, though reluctantly, to oppose Washington's administration, which he did in a courteous and temperate manner. He led his party in Congress, where he remained till 1797. The next year he drafted the famous "1798-99 Resolutions," enunciating the doctrines of State rights, which, with the accompanying "Report" in their defence, have been the great text-book of the Democratic party. He was Secretary of State to Jefferson. After his Presidential services, he retired from public station. Madison's success was not so much the result of a great natural ability as of intense application and severe accuracy. His mind was strong, clear, and well balanced, and his memory was wonderful. Like John Quincy Adams he had laid up great store of learning, which he used in the most skillful manner. He always exhausted the subject upon which he spoke. "When he had finished, nothing remained to be said." His private character was spotless. His manner was simple, modest, and uniformly courteous to his opponents. He enjoyed wit and humor, and told a story admirably. His sunny temper remained with him to the last. Some friends coming to visit him during his final illness, he sank smilingly back on his couch, saying, "I always talk better when I lie." It has been said of him, "It was his rare good fortune to have a whole nation for his friends."

JAMES MONROE.

(FIFTH PRESIDENT—TWO TERMS.)

JAMES MONROE was born in Westmoreland county, Virginia, April 28, 1758, and died in the city of New York, July 4, 1831. He filled the office of President of the United States from the year 1817 to 1825. As a soldier under General Washington, he bore a brave record, and especially distinguished himself in the battles of Brandywine, Germantown, and Monmouth. Afterward he studied law, and entered political life. Having been sent by Washington as Minister to France, he showed such marked sympathy with that country as to displease the President and his cabinet, who were just concluding a treaty with England, and wished to preserve a strictly neutral policy. He was therefore recalled. Under Jefferson, who was his warm friend, he was again sent to France in 1803, when he secured the purchase of Louisiana. He is said to have always taken particular pride in this transaction, regarding his part in it as among the most important of his public services. Soon after his inauguration as President, he visited the military posts in the north and east, with a view to thorough acquaintance with the capabilities of the country in the event of future hostilities. This tour was a great success. He wore a blue military coat of homespun, light-colored breeches, and a cocked hat, being the undress uniform of a Revolutionary officer. Thus was the nation reminded of his former military services. This, with his plain, unassuming manners, completely won the hearts of the people, and brought an overwhelming majority to the support of the administration. Monroe was a man more prudent than brilliant, who acted with a single eye to the welfare of the country. Jefferson said of him: "If his soul were turned inside out, not a spot could be found on it." Like that loved friend, he died "poor in money, but rich in honor;" and like him also, he passed away on the anniversary of the independence of the country he had served so faithfully.

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS.

[SIXTH PRESIDENT.]

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS was born at Brintree, Mass., July 11, 1767, and died at Washington, February 23, 1848. He was President from 1825 to 1829.

John Q. Adams was a man of learning, of blameless reputation, and unquestioned patriotism, yet as a President he was hardly more successful than his father. This was, doubtless, owing greatly to the fierce opposition which assailed him from the friends of disappointed candidates, who at once combined to weaken his measures and prevent his re-election. Their candidate was Andrew Jackson, a man whose dashing boldness, energy, and decision, attracted the popular masses, and hid the more quiet virtues of Adams. To add to his perplexities, a majority of the House, and nearly one-half of the Senate, favored the new party, and his own Vice-President, John C. Calhoun, was also the candidate of the opposition, and of course committed to it. To stem such a tide was a hopeless effort. In two years Adams was returned to Congress, where he remained until his death, over sixteen years afterward. Ten years of public service were thus rendered after he had passed his "three-score years and ten," and so great was his ability in debate at this extreme age, that he was called "the old man eloquent." Like his father, he was a wonderful worker, and his mind was a complete store-house of facts. He lived economically, and left a large estate. He was the congressional advocate of anti-slavery, and a bitter opponent of secret societies. His fame increased with his age, and he died a trusted and revered champion of popular rights. He was seized with paralysis while occupying his seat in Congress, after which he lingered two days in partial unconsciousness. His last words were—"This is the last of earth; I am content."

ANDREW JACKSON.

[SEVENTH PRESIDENT.—TWO TERMS.]

ANDREW JACKSON was born in Waxhaw settlement, North or South Carolina, March 15, 1767, and died at the Hermitage, near Nashville, June 8, 1845. He served as President of the United States from 1829 to 1837.

Jackson was of Scotch-Irish descent. His father died before he was born, and his mother was very poor. As a boy, Andrew was brave and impetuous, passionately fond of athletic sports, but not at all addicted to books. His life was crowded with excitement and adventure. At fourteen, being captured by the British, he was ordered to clean the commander's boots. Showing the true American spirit in his refusal, he was sent to prison with a wound on head and arm. Here he had the smallpox, which kept him ill for several months. Soon after his mother had effected his exchange, she died of ship-fever while caring for the imprisoned Americans at Charleston. Left entirely destitute, young Jackson tried various employments, but finally settled down to the law, and in 1796 was elected to Congress. His imperious temper and inflexible will supplied him with constant quarrels. Often they were passionate word-contests, sometimes they became hand-to-hand encounters, and on one occasion a formal duel was fought, in which he killed his adversary, himself being severely wounded. The scars he bore upon his person were of wounds received in private battles, some of which left a mark for life. Jackson first distinguished himself as a military officer in the war against the Creek Indians, which he made a signal victory. His dashing successes in the war of 1812 completed his reputation, and ultimately won him the Presidency. His nomination was at first received in many States with ridicule, as, whatever might be his military prowess, neither his temper nor his ability seemed to recommend him as a statesman. However, his re-election proved his popular success as a President. His chief intellectual gifts were energy and intuitive judgment. He was thoroughly honest, intensely warm-hearted, and had an instinctive horror of debt. His moral courage was as great as his physical, and his patriotism was undoubted. He died at the "Hermitage," his home near Nashville, Tennessee. Jackson and Adams were born the same year, yet how different was their childhood! One born to luxury and travel, a student from his earliest years, and brilliantly educated; the other poor, hating books, and seeking any kind of work to escape from want. Yet they were destined twice to compete for the highest place in the nation. Adams, the first time barely successful, was unfortunate in his administration: Jackson, triumphing the second, was brilliant in his Presidential career.

[EIGHTH PRESIDENT.]

MARTIN VAN BUREN was born at Kinderhook, New York, December 5, 1782, and died at the same place, July 24, 1862. He studied law and was admitted to practice in 1803; was elected President of the United States, and served four years, from 1837 to 1841. He early took an interest in politics, and in 1818 started a new organization of the Democratic party in New York, his native State, which had the power for over twenty years. In 1831 he was appointed minister to England, whither he went in September, but when the nomination came before the Senate in December, it was rejected, on the ground that he had sided with England against the United States, on certain matters, and had carried party contests and their results into foreign negotiations. His party regarded this as an extreme political persecution, and the next year elected him to the Vice-Presidency. He thus became head of the Senate which a few months before had condemned him, and where he now performed his duties with "dignity, courtesy, and impartiality."

As a President, Van Buren was the subject of much partisan censure. The country was passing through a peculiar crisis, and his was a difficult position to fill with satisfaction to all. That he pleased his own party is proved from the fact of his re-nomination in 1840 against Harrison. In 1844 he was once more urged by his friends, but failed to get a two-thirds vote in the convention on account of his opposition to the annexation of Texas. In 1848 he became the candidate of the "free Democracy," a new party advocating anti-slavery principles. After this he retired to his estate in Kinderhook, N. Y., where he died.

WILLIAM H. HARRISON.

[NINTH PRESIDENT.]

WILLIAM H. HARRISON was born in Charles City county, Virginia, February 9, 1773. He was elected President of the United States in 1840, and had scarcely entered upon the duties of his office when he died at Washington, April 4, 1841. He was a graduate of Hampden-Sydney College.

William Henry Harrison distinguished himself during the war of 1812, especially in the battle of the Thames. His military reputation made him available as a Presidential candidate. His character was unimpeachable, and the chief slur cast upon him by his opponents was that he had lived in a "log cabin" with nothing to drink but "hard cider." His friends turned this to good account. The campaign was noted for immense mass-meetings, long processions, song-singing, and general enthusiasm. "Hard cider" became a party watch-word, and "log cabins" a regular feature in the popular parades. He was elected by a very large majority, and great hopes were entertained of his administration. Though advanced in years, he gave promise of endurance. But "he was beset by office-seekers; he was anxious to gratify the numerous friends and supporters who flocked about him; he gave himself incessantly to public business; and at the close of the month he was on a sick bed." His illness was of eight days duration. His last words were: "The principles of the

JOHN TYLER.

[TENTH PRESIDENT.]

JOHN TYLER was born in Charles City county, Virginia, March 29, 1790, and died at Richmond, Va., January 17, 1862. Mr. Tyler became President upon the death of Mr. Harrison as his constitutional successor, as Vice President of the United States. John Tyler was in early life a great admirer of Henry Clay, and is said to have wept with sorrow when the whigs in convention rejected his favorite candidate for the Presidency, and selected Harrison. He was nominated Vice-President by a unanimous vote, and was a great favorite with his party. In the popular refrain "Tippecanoe and Tyler too," the people sung praises to him as heartily as to Harrison himself. The death of Harrison and the succession of Tyler, was the first instance of the kind in our history.

Tyler's administration was not successful. He opposed the measures of his party, and made free use of the veto power. His former political friends denounced him as a renegade, to which he replied that he had never professed to endorse the measures which he opposed. The feeling increased in bitterness. All his cabinet, except Webster, resigned. He was, however, nominated by a convention composed chiefly of office-holders, for the next Presidency; he accepted, but finding no popular support, soon withdrew from the canvass. In 1861 he became the presiding officer of the peace convention in Washington. All efforts at reconciliation proving futile, he renounced his allegiance to the United States and followed the Confederate fortunes. He died in Richmond, where he was in attendance as a member of the Confederate Congress.

JAMES K. POLK.

[ELEVENTH PRESIDENT.]

JAMES K. POLK was born in Mecklinburg county, North Carolina, November 2, 1795, and died at Nashville, June 15, 1849. He graduated from the University of North Carolina in 1816, and studied law. He was President from 1845 to 1849.

Mr. Polk was one of the most conspicuous opposers of the administration of J. Q. Adams, and a warm supporter of Jackson. In 1839, having served fourteen years in Congress, he declined a reelection and was chosen Governor of Tennessee. His Presidential nomination, in connection with that of George M. Dallas of Pennsylvania, as Vice-President, had the effect of uniting the Democratic party, which had been disturbed by dissensions between the friends and opponents of Martin Van Buren. However, the Mexican War, which in many States was strongly opposed, the enactment of a tariff based on a revenue principle instead of a protective one, and the agitation caused by the "Wilmot Proviso," all conspired to affect his popularity before the end of his term. He had, however, previously pledged himself not to be a candidate for re-election. He died about three months after his retirement from office.

ZACHARY TAYLOR.

[TWELFTH PRESIDENT.]

ZACHARY TAYLOR was born in Orange county, Virginia, November 24, 1784. He entered upon the duties of President in 1849, and died at the Presidential Mansion, July 9, 1850, after an illness of five days. Soon after his birth his parents removed to Kentucky. His means of education were of the scantiest kind, and until he was twenty-four years of age he worked on his father's plantation. Madison, who was a relative, and at that time Secretary of State, then secured for him an appointment in the army as lieutenant. From this he rose by regular and rapid degrees to a major-generalship. His triumphant battles at Palo Alto, Resaca de la Palma, Monterey, and Buena Vista, won him great applause. He was the popular hero of a successful war. The soldiers admirably called him "Old Rough and Ready." Having been offered the nomination for President, he published several letters defining his position as "a whig, but not an ultra-whig," and declaring that he would not be a party candidate or the exponent of party doctrines. Many of the whig leaders violently opposed his nomination. Daniel Webster called him "an ignorant frontier colonel." The fact that he was a slaveholder was warmly urged against him. He knew nothing of civil affairs, and had taken so little interest in politics that he had not voted in forty years. But he was nominated and elected. His nomination caused a secession from the whigs, resulting in the formation of the free-soil party. He felt his want of qualifications for the position, and sometimes expressed his regret that he had accepted it. Yet he maintained as President the popularity which had led to his election, and was personally one of the most esteemed who have filled that office.

MILLARD FILLMORE.

[THIRTEENTH PRESIDENT.]

MILLARD FILLMORE, being elected Vice President to President Taylor, became his constitutional successor, and served the unexpired term from 1850 to 1853. He was born in Cayuga county, New York, January 7, 1800, and died March 8, 1874. Mr. Fillmore had not a very liberal education, and, when young, served as an apprentice to the fuller's trade. In the year 1821 he was admitted to the bar, and practiced law with success. From 1832 to 1840 he was a member of Congress; in 1842 he was nominated

FRANKLIN PIERCE.

[FOURTEENTH PRESIDENT.]

FRANKLIN PIERCE was born at Hillsborough, New Hampshire, on the 23d of November, 1804, and died in 1889. He graduated at Bowdoin College, Maine, in 1824; studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1827. He was President from 1853 to 1857.

Mr. Pierce had barely attained the requisite legal age when he was elected to the Senate. He there found such men as Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Thomas H. Benton, and Silas Wright. Nathaniel Hawthorn says in his biography of Mr. Pierce: "With his usual tact and exquisite sense of propriety, he saw it was not the time for him to step forward prominently on this highest theatre in the land. He beheld these great combatants doing battle before the eyes of the nation, and engrossing its whole regards. There was hardly an avenue to reputation save what was occupied by one or another of those gigantic figures." During Tyler's administration, he resigned. When the Mexican war broke out, he enlisted as a volunteer, but soon rose to the office of brigadier-general. He distinguished himself under General Scott, against whom he afterwards successfully ran for the Presidency, and upon whom, during his administration, he conferred the title of lieutenant-general. On the question of slavery, Mr. Pierce always sided with the South, and opposed anti-slavery measures in every shape. In a message to Congress in 1856, he characterized the formation of a free State government in Kansas as an act of rebellion, and justified the principles of the Kansas and Nebraska Act. He, however, espoused the national cause at the opening of the civil war, and urged a cordial support of the administration at Washington.

JAMES BUCHANAN.

[FIFTEENTH PRESIDENT.]

JAMES BUCHANAN was born in Franklin county, Pennsylvania, April 13, 1791, and died at Wheatland, June 1, 1868. He was a graduate of Dickinson College and was admitted to the bar in 1812. He was President from 1857 to 1861, and was so constantly in office from 1820 up to that time that he was known by the sobriquet of "Public Functionary."

The "bachelor-President," as Mr. Buchanan was sometimes called, was sixty-six years old when he was called to the executive chair. He had just returned to his native country, after an absence of four years as Minister to England. Previously to that he had been well known in public life as Congressman, Senator, and as Secretary of State under President Polk. As Senator in Jackson's time, he heartily supported his administration. With Van Buren, he warmly advocated the idea of an independent treasury against the opposition of Clay, Webster, and others. Under Tyler, he was urgently in favor of the annexation of Texas, thus again coming in conflict with Clay and Webster. However, he cordially agreed with them in the compromise of 1850, and urged its favor upon the people. Much was hoped from his election, as he avowed the object of his administration to be "to destroy any sectional party, whether North or South, and to restore, if possible, that national fraternal feeling between the different States that had existed during the early days of the Republic." But popular passion and sectional jealousy were too strong to yield to pleasant persuasion. When Mr. Buchanan's administration closed, the fearful conflict was close at hand. He retired to his estate in Pennsylvania, where he died.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

[SIXTEENTH PRESIDENT.]

ABRAHAM LINCOLN was born in Hardin county, Kentucky, on the 12th of February, 1809. He was elected President in 1860, and was re-elected in 1864, and had entered upon the duties of his office for the second time, when he was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth, April 14th, 1865, and died the following day.

His father was unable to read or write. Abraham's education consisted of one year's schooling. When he was eight years old his father moved to Indiana, the family floating down the Ohio on a raft. When nineteen years of age the future President hired out as a hand on a flat-boat at $10 per month, and made a trip to New Orleans. On his return he accompanied the family to Illinois, driving the cattle on the journey, and on reaching their destination helped them to build a cabin, and to split rails to enclose the farm. He was now in succession a flat-boat hand, clerk, captain of a company of volunteers in the Black Hawk War, country store-keeper, postmaster, and surveyor, yet he managed to get a knowledge of law by borrowing books at an office, before it closed at night, and returning them at its opening in the morning. On being admitted to the bar, he rapidly rose to distinction. At twenty-five he was sent to the Legislature, and was thrice re-elected. Turning his attention to politics, he soon became a leader. He was sent to Congress; he canvassed the State, haranguing the people daily on great national questions; and, in 1858, he was candidate for Senator, a second time, against Stephen A. Douglass. The two rivals stumped the State together. The debate, unrivalled for its statesmanship, logic, and wit, won for Lincoln a national reputation. He lost the election in the Legislature, as his party was in the minority. After his accession to the Presidency, his history, like Washington's, is identified with that of his country. He was a tall, ungainly man, little versed in the refinements of society, but gifted by nature with great common sense, and everywhere known as "Honest Abe." Kind, earnest, sympathetic, faithful, democratic, he was only anxious to serve his country. His wan, fatigued face, and his bent form, told of the cares he bore, and the grief he felt. His only relief was, when tossing aside for a moment the heavy load of responsibility, his face would light up with a humorous smile, while he narrated some incident whose aptness to the subject at hand, and irresistible wit, convulsed his hearers, and rendered "Lincoln's stories" household words throughout the nation.

ANDREW JOHNSON.

[SEVENTEENTH PRESIDENT.]

ANDREW JOHNSON was born near Raleigh, North Carolina, December 29, 1808. He was Vice-President when Abraham Lincoln was assassinated, and by his death Mr. Johnson became the constitutional President of the United States. He died in 1875, while serving as United States Senator from Tennessee.

When only ten years of age, Mr. Johnson was bound apprentice to a tailor of Raleigh. Never having been a day at school in his life, he yet determined to secure an education. From a fellow-workman he learned the alphabet, and from a friend something of spelling. Thenceforth, after working ten or twelve hours per day at his trade, he spent two or three every night in study. In 1826, he went West to seek his fortune, with true filial affection carrying with him his mother, who was dependent on his labor for support. After his marriage at Greenville, Tenn., he continued his studies under the instruction of his wife, pursuing his trade as before by day. His political life commenced with his election as alderman. He was successively chosen mayor, member of the legislature, Presidential elector, State senator, twice governor, and for fifteen years U. S. senator. Remaining true to the Union when his State seceded, his loyalty attracted general attention: A life-time democrat, he was elected on the republican ticket as Vice-President, in reward for his faithfulness. Coming into office with a republican Congress, it is not strange that his way was hedged with difficulties, and his Presidential career a most unhappy one.

ULYSSES S. GRANT.

[EIGHTEENTH PRESIDENT, TWO TERMS.]

ULYSSES S. GRANT was born at Point Pleasant, Clermont county, Ohio, April 27, 1822. He was very unwilling to follow his father's trade, which was that of a tanner, and, at seventeen, an appointment was secured for him at West Point. His name having been wrongly registered, Grant vainly attempted to set the matter right, but finally accepted his "manifest destiny," assumed the change thus forced upon him, and thenceforth signed himself "Ulysses Simpson," the latter being his mother's family name. Two years after completing his four years' course as cadet, the Mexican war broke out, in which Grant conducted himself with great gallantry, receiving especial mention and promotion. In 1847 he was made first lieutenant, captain in 1853, and in 1854 resigned his commission, and entered the leather and saddlery business at Galena, Illinois, in 1859, where he remained until the opening of the war in 1861, when he immediately offered his services in behalf of the Union. His modesty and diffidence delayed their acceptance, and Governor Yates, of Illinois, was the first to avail himself of them. Grant finally took the field as colonel of the Twenty-first Regiment Illinois Volunteers. In February, 1862, he was made a major-general, and commanded the armies of the Southwest. On the 12th of March, 1864, he was made lieutenant-general and put in command of all the armies, and took personal direction of the military operations in Virginia, and, on the 9th of April, 1865, General Lee surrendered the Confederate armies to him, at Appomattox Court House, and hostilities were ended.

He was nominated and elected by the Republicans President of the United States in 1868, and re-elected by the same party in 1872, and is now the present incumbent. His term expires in 1877.

CHRONOLOGY

HEROES OF THE REVOLUTION, AND THE WAR OF 1812.

James Otis was born at Barnstable, Mass., 1725. He was the leader of the Revolutionary party in Massachusetts at the beginning. He was wounded by a British official in 1769, and never entirely recovered. He was killed by lightning in 1772.

Samuel Adams was born in Boston in 1722. He was one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence; was afterwards Governor of Massachusetts, and died in 1803. It is also believed that he was one of the leaders of the patriots in the Boston massacre, March 5, 1770.

Charles Thomson was born in Ireland in 1730, and came to America when he was only eleven years of age. He settled in Pennsylvania, and was Secretary of Congress perpetually from 1774 until the adoption of the Federal Constitution, and the organization of the new government in 1789. He died in 1824 at the age of 94.

William Prescott was born at Groton, Mass.; was a colonel at the battle of Bunker Hill, and served under Gates until the surrender of Burgoyne, when he left the army. He died in 1795.

Joseph Warren was born at Roxbury, Mass., in 1740. He was killed by a musket ball at the battle of Bunker Hill, while retreating, and buried where he fell, near the redoubt. The tall Bunker Hill monument stands on the very spot where he fell, commemorates his death, as well as the patriotism of his countrymen. He was a physician, and was 35 years of age when he died. His remains now rest in St. Paul's Church, Boston. A statue to his honor was inaugurated on the 17th of June, 1857.

Patrick Henry was born in Hanover county, Virginia, in 1736. He appeared suddenly in public life when almost thirty years of age. He was an active public man during the Revolution, was Governor of Virginia, and died in 1799.

Richard Schuyler was born in Albany, N. Y., in 1733, and died in 1804. He was a captain under Sir William Johnson, and was in active public service until the Revolution. He was a general in the patriot army, and was a legislator after the war.

Richard Montgomery was born in Ireland, in 1737. He was with Wolfe at Quebec, in 1759; afterward married and settled in the State of New York. He was a general in the patriot army, and killed at the battle of Quebec, in 1775.

Ethan Allen was a colonel in the patriot army. He was born in Litchfield county, Conn. He attacked the English at Montreal, was defeated, taken prisoner, and sent to England in irons. He was never engaged in active military service after his capture. He died in Vermont, in 1789, and his remains lie in a cemetery two miles from Burlington.

General Thomas was a native of Plymouth, Mass., and was one of the first eight brigadiers appointed by Congress in 1775. He died with the small-pox in 1776, at Chambly, in Canada.

Charles Lee was born in Wales in 1731. He was a brave officer in the British army. He settled in Virginia in 1773, and was one of the first brigadiers of the Continental army. He was arrested and tried by a court-martial for disobedience of orders and disrespect to Washington at the battle of Monmouth. He was found guilty, and was suspended from command for one year. He never entered the army again, and died in obscurity in Philadelphia, in 1782.

William Moultrie was born in South Carolina in 1730, and died in 1805. He was a general in the Revolution, and an active officer until made prisoner in 1780, when for two years he was not allowed to bear arms.

Richard Henry Lee was born in Westmoreland county, Va., in 1732. He was much in public life, signed the Declaration of Independence, was a U. S. Senator, and died in 1794.

John Hancock was born at Quincy, Mass., in 1737. He was an early and popular opponent of British power, and was chosen the second President of Congress.
He was afterwards Governor of Massachusetts, and died in 1793.General Putnam was born at Salem, Mass., in 1718. He was a very useful officer during the French and Indian war, and was in active service in the Continental army, commencing with the battle of Bunker Hill until 1779, when bodily infirmity compelled him to retire. He died in 1790 at the age of 72.William Alexander Stirling was a descendant of the Scotch Earl of Stirling.
He was born in the city of New York in 1726. He became attached to the patriot cause and served as a faithful officer during the war. He was made prisoner at the battle of Long Island. He died in 1783.Hugh Mercer, a general in the Continental army, was killed at the battle of Princeton. He was a native of Scotland, and was practicing medicine in Fredericksburg, Va., when the Revolution broke out. He was 56 years of age when he died.General McDougal was born in Scotland, and came to America in early childhood.
He rose to the rank of Major General, was a New York State Senator and died in 1786.Marquis de La Fayette was born in France in 1757. He was an active patriot during the Revolution, and contributed men and money to the patriot cause. He was commissioned Major General by the Continental Congress July 31, 1777. He died in France in 1834, at the age of 77.Arthur St. Clair was a native of Scotland, and came to America in May, 1755.
He served under Wolfe, and when the Revolution broke out he entered the American army. He served as a general during the war, and died in 1818 at the age of 84.Zebulon Butler was born in Connecticut in 1731. Served in the Revolution as a colonel, and died in Wyoming in 1795.Baron Steuben came to America in 1777, and joined the Continental army at Valley Forge. He was a veteran from the armies of Frederic the Great of Prussia.
He was made Inspector General of the American army. He died in the interior of New York in 1795.Benjamin Lincoln was born in Massachusetts in 1733. He was a farmer. He joined the Continental army in 1777, and rose rapidly to the position of major-general.
He died in 1810.John Ashe was born in England in 1721, and came to America when a child.
He was engaged in the Regulator war in North Carolina in 1771, and was a general in the Continental army. He died of small-pox in 1781.Anthony Wayne was born in Pennsylvania in 1745. He was a professional surveyor, then a provincial legislator, and became a soldier in 1775. He was very active during the whole war, and was successful in subduing the Indians in the Ohio country in 1795. He died on his way home, at Erie, Pa., near the close of 1796.

George Rogers Clarke was a native of Virginia, and was born in 1752. He was one of the most accomplished and useful officers of the Western pioneers during the Revolution. He died near Louisville, Ky., in 1813.

John Sullivan was born in Maine in 1740. He was a delegate to the first Continental Congress in 1774, and was one of the first eight brigadiers in the Continental army. He resigned his commission of general in 1779; was afterward member of Congress and Governor of New Hampshire, and died in 1795.

James Clinton was born in Ulster county, N. Y., in 1736. He was a captain in the French and Indian war, and an active general in the Revolutionary army. He died in 1812.

John Paul Jones was born in Scotland in 1747, and came to Virginia in boyhood. He entered the American navy in 1775, and served as commodore during the war. He was an intrepid and daring officer. He was afterwards rear-admiral in the Russian service. He died in Paris in 1782.

John Rutledge was born in Ireland, and came to South Carolina when a child, and was Governor of that State in 1780. After the Revolutionary war he was made a judge of the Supreme Court of the United States, and also chief justice of South Carolina. He died in 1800.

Horatio Gates was a native of England, and was educated for military life. He was the first adjutant-general of the Continental army, and was made major-general in 1776. He retired to his estate in Virginia at the close of the war, and finally took up his abode in New York, where he died in 1806, at the age of 78 years.

Thomas Sumpter was a native of South Carolina, and was early in the field. Ill health compelled him to leave the army just before the close of the war in 1781. He was afterward Congressman and died on the High Hills of Santee, S. C., in 1832, at 98 years of age.

Baron de Kalb was a native of Alsace, a German province ceded to France. He had been in America as a secret French agent, about fifteen years before. He came to America with Lafayette in 1777, and Congress commissioned him a Major-General. He died of wounds received at the battle of Camden in 1780.

Benedict Arnold was a native of Norwich, Conn., where he was born in January, 1740. He fought nobly for freedom until 1778, when his passions got the better of his judgment and his conscience, he became a traitor and joined the British army. He went to England after the war, and died in London, June 14, 1801.

Nathaniel Greene was born of Quaker parents, in Rhode Island, in 1740. He was an anchormsmith, and was pursuing his trade when the Revolution broke out. He hastened to Boston after the skirmish at Lexington, and from that time until the close of the war he was one of the most useful Generals in the army. He died near Savannah in 1786, and was buried in a vault in that city. His sepulchre can not be identified.

Daniel Morgan was born in New Jersey in 1736, and was in the humble sphere of a wagoner when called to the field. He had been a soldier under Braddock, and joined Washington at Cambridge in 1775, and became a general. He was a farmer in Virginia after the war, where he died in 1802.

John Eager Howard, of the Maryland line, was born in Baltimore county in 1752. He went into military service at the commencement of the war. He was a colonel, and was in all the principal battles of the Revolution; was chosen Governor of Maryland in 1778, and was afterward a United States Senator. He died in 1827.

William Washington, a relative of the General, was born in Stafford county, Va. He entered the army under Mercer, and greatly distinguished himself at the South as a commander of a corps of cavalry. Taken prisoner at the battle of Eutaw Springs, he remained a captive until the close of the war, and died in Charleston in 1810. In a personal combat with the British Colonel Tarleton, at the battle of the Cowpens, Washington wounded his antagonist in the hand. Some months afterward Tarleton said sneeringly to Mrs. Willie Jones, a witty American lady, "that Colonel Washington, I am told, is illiterate, and cannot write his own name." "Ah! Colonel," said Mrs. Jones, "you ought to know better, for you bear evidence that he can make his mark." At another time he expressed a desire to see Colonel Washington. Mrs. Jones's sister instantly replied, "Had you looked behind at the Cowpens, you might have had that pleasure."

Henry Lee was born in Virginia in 1756. He entered the military service as a captain of a Virginia company in 1776, and in 1777 joined the Continental army. At the head of a legion, as colonel, he performed extraordinary services during the war, especially in the South. He was afterward Governor of Virginia, and a member of Congress. He died in 1818.

Andrew Pickens was born in Pennsylvania in 1739, and served as a general in the Revolution. In childhood he went to South Carolina, and was one of the first in the field for liberty. He died in 1817.

Thomas Mifflin was born in Philadelphia in 1744. He was a Quaker, but joined the patriot army in 1775, and rapidly rose to the rank of major-general. He was a member of Congress after the war, and also Governor of Pennsylvania. He died in January, 1800.

John Jay was a descendant of a Huguenot family, and was born in the city of New York in 1745. He was early in the ranks of active patriots, and rendered very important services during the Revolution. He retired from public life in 1801, and died in 1829, at the age of 84 years. His residence was at Bedford, Winchester county, N. N.

William Bainbridge (Commodore), was born in New Jersey in 1774. He was the captain of a merchant vessel at the age of 19, and entered the naval service in 1798. He was distinguished during the war of 1812, and died in 1833.

Stephen Decatur was born in Maryland in 1779. He entered the navy at the age of 19. After his last cruise in the Mediterranean he superintended the building of gun-boats. He rose to the rank of commodore, and during the war of 1812 he was distinguished for his skill and bravery. He afterward humbled the Barbary powers, and after returning home he was killed in a duel with Commodore Barron, in March, 1820.

Aaron Burr was born in New Jersey in 1756. In his twentieth year he joined the Continental army, and accompanied Arnold in his expedition against Quebec. Ill health compelled him to leave the army in 1779, and he became a distinguished lawyer, and active, public man. He died on Staten Island, N. Y., in 1836.

Robert Fulton, the inventor and discoverer of steam navigation, was born in Pennsylvania, and was a student of West, the great painter, for several years. He had more genius for mechanics than for the fine arts, and he turned his efforts in that direction. He died in 1815, soon after launching a steamship-of-war, at the age of 50 years.

Henry Dearborn was an officer of the Revolution, and, in the war of 1812, was appointed major-general and commander-in-chief of the armies. He was born in New Hampshire. He returned to private life in 1815, and died at Roxbury, near Boston, in 1829, at the age of 78 years.

William Hull was born in Connecticut in 1753. He rose to the rank of major in the Continental army. Though severely censured for his surrender of Detroit in 1812, he was a good man, and distinguished for his bravery. He was appointed governor of the Michigan Territory in 1805. After the close of his unfortunate campaign he never appeared in public life. He died, near Boston, in 1825.

Isaac Hull was made a lieutenant in the navy in 1798, and in 1812 was commodore, in command of the United States frigate Constitution. He died in Philadelphia in February, 1843.

Isaac Shelby was born in Maryland in 1750. He entered military life in 1774, and went to Kentucky as a land surveyor in 1775. He engaged in the war of the Revolution, and was distinguished in the battle on King's Mountain, in October, 1780. He was made Governor of Kentucky in 1792, and soon afterward retired to private life, from which he was drawn in 1813. He died in 1826.

James Winchester was born in Maryland in 1756. He was made a brigadier in 1812; resigned his commission in 1815, and died in Tennessee in 1826.

Green Clay was born in Virginia in 1756, and was made a brigadier of Kentucky volunteers early in 1813. He commanded at Fort Meigs, in 1813. He died in 1826.

Zebulon M. Pike was born in 1779.
While pressing towards the capture of York, in 1813 (Toronto), the powder magazine of the fort blew up, and Gen.
Pike was mortally wounded. He was carried on board the flag-ship of Commodore Chauncey, where he died, with the captured British flag under his head, at the age of 34 years.

John Chandler was a native of Massachusetts, and served as a general in the war of 1812. Some years after the war he was a United States Senator from Maine.
He died at Augusta, in that State, in 1841.

General Wilkinson was born in Maryland in 1757, and studied medicine.
He joined the Continental army at Cambridge, in 1775, and continued in service during the war. He died near the city of Mexico, in 1825, at the age of 68 years.

General Armstrong was born in Pennsylvania in 1758; served in the war of the Revolution; was Secretary of the State of Pennsylvania; Minister to France in 1804; Secretary of War in 1813, and died in Dutchess county, N. Y., in 1843.

General John Coffee was a native of Virginia. He did good service in the war of 1812, and in subsequent campaigns among the Indians. He died in 1834.

James Lawrence was a native of New Jersey, and received a midshipman's warrant at the age of 16. He is remembered by every American, as the author of those brave words: "Don't give up the ship." On this occasion he was wounded while commanding the U. S. frigate Chesapeake, and the engagement took place in 1814. He died four days after receiving the wound, at the age of thirty-one.

Commodore David Porter was among the most distinguished of the American naval commanders. He was a resident minister of the United States in Turkey, and died near Constantinople, in March, 1843.

Jacob Brown was born in Pennsylvania in 1775. He engaged in his country's service in 1813, and soon became distinguished. He was made major-general in 1814. He was commander-in-chief of the United States army in 1821, and held that rank and office when he died in 1838.

George Izard was born in South Carolina in 1777. He was a general, and made military life his profession. After the war he left the army. He was Governor of Arkansas Territory in 1825, and died at Little Rock, Ark., in 1828.

Alexander Macomb was born in Detroit in 1782, and entered the army at the age of seventeen years. He was made a brigadier in 1814. In 1835 he was commander-in-chief of the armies of the United States, and died in 1841.

Thomas M'Donough was a native of Delaware, and a commodore in the navy. He was twenty-eight years of age at the time of the engagement at Plattsburg. The State of New York gave him one thousand acres of land on Plattsburg Bay for his services. He died in 1825, at the age of thirty-nine years.

Commodore Barney was born in Baltimore in 1759. He entered the naval service of the Revolution in 1775, and was active during the whole war. He bore the American flag to the French National Convention in 1796, and entered the French service. He returned to America in 1800, and took part in the war of 1812, and died at Pittsburgh in 1818.

Samuel Smith, the commander of Fort Mifflin in 1777, was born in Pennsylvania in 1752. He entered the Revolutionary army in 1776, served as a general in command when Ross attacked Baltimore in 1814. Afterward represented Baltimore in Congress, and died in April, 1839.

Edmund P. Gaines was born in Virginia in 1777. He entered the army in 1799, and rose gradually until he was made major-general for his gallantry at Fort Erie in 1814. He remained in the army until his death, in 1849.

Henry Atkinson was a native of South Carolina, and entered the army as a captain in 1808. He was retained in the army after the war of 1812, was made adjutant-general, and was finally appointed to the command of the western army. He died in Jefferson Barracks, in June, 1842.

Henry Clay was born in Virginia in 1775. He became a lawyer at Richmond, and at the age of twenty-one he established himself in his profession at Lexington, Ky. He first appeared in Congress, as Senator, in 1806, and from that period his life was chiefly devoted to the public service. He died in Washington City, while United States Senator, in 1852.

Thomas S. Jesup was born in Virginia in 1778. He was a brave and useful officer during the war of 1812, and was retained in the army. He was breveted major-general in 1828, and was succeeded in command in Florida by Colonel Zachary Taylor in 1838. He died in Washington City.

Daniel Webster was born in Salisbury, New Hampshire, in 1782. He was admitted to the bar in Boston in 1805. He commenced his political career in Congress in 1818. He was in public employment a greater portion of the remainder of his life, and was the most distinguished statesman of his time. He died at Marshfield, Mass., in October, 1852.

Major Brown was born in Massachusetts in 1788; was in the war of 1812, and was promoted to major in 1843. He was wounded in the Mexican war by the Descriptions of Illustrations.

Agricultural Building.—(Page 27.) The materials used for this building are glass and wood. The ground plan is a parallelogram of 540 feet by 820 feet, covering a space of about ten acres. It consists of a large nave, crossed by three transepts, both nave and transept being composed of Howe truss arches of a Gothic form. The nave is 820 feet in length by 125 feet in width, with a height of 75 feet from the floor to the point of the arch. The central transept is of the same height, and a breadth of 100 feet, the two end transepts 70 feet high and 80 feet wide.

Arkansas Building.—(Page 215.) This building is a pavilion, with offices and retiring rooms, covering an area of over 5,000 square feet. The shape of the building is octagonal; the columns are placed in a circle, 82 feet in diameter; the ceiling is spherical, and an octagonal dome is placed on the top of the roof; the top of the dome is 50 feet above the floor line. The roof construction is of iron; the sides of wood and glass.

Art Exhibition Hall.—(Page 53.) The building is in the modern form. The materials are granite, glass, and iron. No wood is used in the construction. The building is 365 feet in length, 210 feet in width, and 59 feet in height. The dome is 150 feet from the ground. It is of glass and iron, and of a unique design. It terminates in a colossal bell, from which the figure of Columbia rises with protecting hands. A figure of colossal size stands at each corner of the base of the dome. These figures typify the four quarters of the globe. The building cost $1,500,000.

Brattle Square Church.—Boston (Page 161), was first built in 1899, was taken down in 1772, and the building just demolished, erected on the same spot, was dedicated on the 25th of July, 1773. During the Revolution the pastor, who was a patriot, was obliged to leave Boston, services were suspended, and the British soldiers used the building as a barrack. A cannon-ball from a battery in Cambridge, or from a ship of war in Charles river, struck the church, and this memento of the glorious contest was afterwards built into the external wall of the church, above the porch. The old church was sold in 1871, and the last service was held in it July 30th of that year. The ancient pulpit, the old bell, the organ, the historic cannon-ball, and some other mementos, were reserved at the sale. A large business block now occupies the site of the church.

Bridge between New York and Brooklyn.—(Page 47.)—Total length, 5,878 feet, total height above high tide, 268 feet. The bridge is now in course of construction, and, up to the present time, the abutments are only about completed. It is impossible to approximate the time when the work will be finished, as it depends upon appropriations, from time to time, from New York and Brooklyn, to defray the expenses.

Bunker Hill Monument.—(Page 137.)—marks the spot where the first real battle of the Revolution was fought. It is 221 feet high. The corner stone was laid by Gen. Lafayette, June 17, 1825, and Daniel Webster delivered one of his most memorable orations on the occasion. The monument was completed in 1842, and was dedicated June 17, 1843, in the presence of the President of the United States and his Cabinet.

Carpenter's Hall, Philadelphia.—(Page 125.)—The hall is situated on Chestnut street, a few paces east from Fourth, Philadelphia. On the 5th of September, 1774, the first Continental Congress met in this hall, and begun their deliberations, which resulted in the Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776. The building is owned by the Carpenters' Company of Philadelphia, an organization which has maintained its existence since 1724 up to the present time. The hall was built in the year 1771.

Carriage and Wagon Building.—It is built of wood and iron, and lighted principally by skylights. It is 345 feet long and 230 wide. The exhibits by American manufacture number over one hundred; English, 45; France, 36; and Germany and Italy each one.

Casino.—(Page 71.)—A handsome structure, situated near the Broadway entrance, in Central Park, New York. It is a great place of resort for refreshments by visitors.

City Hall, Boston.—(Page 143.)—The corner stone was laid on the 22d of December, 1862—the anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth. The amount first appropriated was $160,000, but before the building was occupied the actual cost was more than half a million dollars. The building was completed and dedicated on the 18th of September, 1865. The tablet in the wall, back of the first landing, perpetuates in beautifully worked marble, the statement that the dedication took place on the 17th of September. This day would have been highly appropriate for the ceremony, being the two-hundredth and thirty-fifth anniversary of the settlement of Boston, had it not fallen on Sunday. The ceremony was accordingly postponed until the following day.

City Hall, New York.—(Page 59.)—Constructed of white marble, 216 feet long and 105 feet wide. Commenced in 1803, and was eight years in building, and for many years was the most elegant structure in America. The tower surmounting the edifice formerly contained a bell weighing 9,000 pounds, which was removed several years ago.

Connecticut State Building.—Is of the Dutch Colonial style; 30 feet front by 40 feet deep, with a wing 10 feet by 20. The lower part of the outside of the building is constructed of scollop-fashioned shingles, and the upper part is lathed and plastered. A massive stone chimney protrudes from the roof, and the front is relieved by an old-fashioned porch.

Delaware State Building.—(Page 265.)—Is 54 by 34 feet in size, and two storeys high. It is built in the Swiss Gothic style of architecture, composed of wood entirely from the State of Delaware. It is occupied by the State Commissioners, the first floor being used as reception rooms, while the second floor is devoted to business purposes.

Department of Public Comfort.—(Page 319.)—This building is located directly opposite the main entrance to the Centennial grounds, and is used for a general reception room. It has a frontage of over 275 feet, by an average depth of about one hundred feet, and is of an ornamental character, with verandahs, and well lighted and ventilated rooms. The building contains one very large principal reception room, ladies' parlor, coat, baggage and umbrella room, lunch counter, barber shop, ladies hair-dressing room, lavatories, closets, &c. The whole under the supervision of W. Marsh Kassen, manager; C. Vallette Kassen, secretary, and J. H. Simmons, treasurer.

English Commissioners' Building and Staff Quarters.—(Pages 185 and 307.)—The Commissioners' buildings covers an area of about 5,000 superficial feet, and is used by the officers of the British commissions and the commissions from Canada and the many British colonies throughout the world. The staff quarters, which has an area of 1,200 feet, is used as the residence of the staff of the British portion of the exhibition. The buildings are of the picturesque half-timbered style of architecture, so much in vogue during the sixteenth century.

Faneuil Hall, the "Cradle of Liberty."—(Page 167.)—This building was presented to Boston by Peter Faneuil. It was erected in 1742, destroyed by fire in 1761, and immediately thereafter was rebuilt by the vote of the town. In 1805 it was enlarged to its present size, and until 1822 all town meetings of Boston were held within its walls. The hall is 76 feet square and 28 feet high. It is never let for money, but is at the disposal of the people, whenever a sufficient number of persons, complying with certain regulations, ask to have it opened. By a provision in the charter of Boston, it is forbidden the sale or lease of the hall.

Hall of Photographic Art Association.—(Page 101.)—The dimensions of this building are 240 feet long by 75 feet wide, and 20 feet is the height of the walls. In order that there may be plenty of light, the roof is composed entirely of glass. It cost $26,000, which was contributed by the photographers of America. The building is devoted exclusively to the exhibition of American and foreign photographic art.

Horticultural Hall.—(Page 41.)—The building is 383 feet long, 193 feet wide, and 72 feet high to top of the lantern. It is illuminated by 3,500 burners. Thirty-five acres of ground surround the building, which is devoted to horticultural purposes.

Illinois State Buildings.—(Page 225.)—This building is a handsome structure, and reflects great credit to the State. Its dimensions are 40 by 60 feet, a story and a half high, with a French roof. It is the headquarters for visitors from Illinois, and offers a welcome to strangers from all parts of the country.

Independence Hall.—(Page 245.)—Independence Hall, erected on Chestnut street, between Fifth and Sixth streets, Philadelphia, was commenced in 1729, and finished in 1734. The Continental Congress first met in this building on the 10th of May, 1775, and it was here they declared themselves free and independent. The first thing that strikes the eye on entering is the quaint desk-table on which the Declaration was signed; behind it is the old-fashioned, stately chair occupied by John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress; ranged around the walls are twelve of the original chairs used by members. The original draft of the Declaration of Independence, in Jefferson's handwriting, as interlined by Franklin and Adams, is also here, together with oil painting portraits of just forty of the forty-six signers. For view of interior of building, see page 203.

Indiana State Building.—(Page 89.)—This building is constructed of a combination of wood and other building materials, a frame of wood being the support of the building and roof, to which an outer wall of brick, stone, terra-cotta, iron, and coal can be attached. There are three entrances by four broad steps to the front and side porches, and an open-roofed balcony is extended from each side entrance to the front entrance. The assembly hall is a grand auditorium for miscellaneous gatherings. It is in the form of an irregular cross, 55 feet at its longest angle, and has about 1,400 feet of floor. From the level of the ceilings of the side rooms it is spanned by a truss-arched roof at a height of 24 feet above the centre of the hall. It is lighted by the rotunda above, and an ornamental fountain plays in the centre below. On the walls are 200 tablets, of which number 92 are used by the counties of the State for the general statistics of each county, and the remainder are given to individuals or firms. There are also committee rooms, a ladies' parlor, invalids' room, post office, telegraph office, baggage room, gentlemen's parlor, and the building is a place where any citizen of the State can be at home, to entertain friends and dispatch business. The whole is surmounted by a handsome truss roof, from the top of whose arches a lighted open rotunda of glass and wood rise, crested with metallic ornaments and statues. The entire cost of the building was $10,000.

Japanese Building.—(Page 235).—This building is regarded as the finest piece of carpenter-work ever seen in this country. The wood of which it is built is most beautifully grained, and as smooth as satin. Every portion of the building is most carefully fitted together, and the carving is truly wonderful. Some of our more progressive mechanics were inclined to ridicule the leisurely manner in which the Japanese workmen labored, but they find that if the work was done slowly, it was done remarkably well.

Judges' Hall.—(Page 179).—The extreme dimensions of this building are 152 feet long by 114 feet wide. In the centre is a large and well-lighted hall for public meetings, lectures, &c., and which is used by scientific and other societies holding their meetings in Philadelphia. Another and smaller hall is appropriated to meetings of the Centennial Commissioners, and if necessary the two halls can be thrown together, with accommodations for 700 persons. The gallery above furnishes accommodation for ladies. A series of rooms is arranged for the accommodation of the judges, each department having its own room, with every convenience.

Kansas and Colorado State Building.—(Page 107) occupies a plot of ground 132 by 132 feet. The building is an ornamental cottage, with a large circular hall in the centre. Commodious apartments radiate in four directions from the central room, with numerous large private offices at their intersections.

Main Exhibition Building.—(Page 14).—This is in the form of a parallelogram, extending east and west 1,880 feet in length, and north and south 464 feet in width. The framework is of iron. The foundations consist of 672 stone piers. The larger portion of the structure is one story in height, and shows the main cornice upon the outside at 45 feet above the ground, the interior height being 70 feet. Upon the corners of the building there are four towers 75 feet in height, and between the towers and the central projections or entrances there is a lower roof introduced, showing a cornice 24 feet above the ground. Small balconies, or galleries of observation, have been provided in the four central towers of the building, at the heights of the different stories. This edifice cost $1,420,000, exclusive of drainage, water-pipe, plumbing, painting, and decoration.

Machinery Hall.—(Page 65.)—This building was very rapidly built, showing the wonderful energy of American mechanics. It was commenced April 13th, 1875, and, on the 5th day of July following, it was so far completed as to enable a monster gathering of 50,000 people to assemble beneath its roof, to celebrate, in appropriate manner, the natal day of our independence. The building is 360 feet wide by 1,402 feet long, with an annex on the south side of 208 by 210 feet. The entire area covered is 558,440 square feet, or 1,282 acres, exclusive of the upper floors. Sixteen lines of shafting, running almost the entire length of the building, and counter-shafts introduced into the aisles, at almost every point, are placed in position. Twelve lengths of the shafting is run at a speed of 120 revolutions, and four lengths at a speed of 240 revolutions per minute. Cost of structure, $722,000.

Masonic Temple, corner Sixth avenue and 23rd street, New York.

—(Page 35.)—Built of Rhode Island granite, fireproof, on a lot 100 x 140 feet, five stories high, with a dome 50 feet square, and rising 155 feet above the pavement. The Grand Lodge Hall, 84x90 feet, and 30 feet high, will seat 1,200. The fifth story is devoted exclusively to the Knights Templars, and is believed to be the most complete ever constructed. Corner-stone was laid in June, 1870, and was four years in building. Lot cost $340,000, and building nearly half a million.

Massachusetts State Building.—

(Page 149).—Built after the style of houses that were common in colonial times. The building is one and a half stories high, with dormer windows and light fancy verandahs. It is 85 by 70 feet in dimensions.

Mississippi State Building.—This building has a front of 40 feet with a depth of 36, two stories high. The outside of the building is covered entirely with hickory bark, interspersed with panels laid in diagonal style. The roof is tin and the eaves are draped with hill moss from the State of Mississippi. There are 68 different varieties of wood used in the building, all from the State it represents. It has four rooms, two for the use of male visitors, and two for ladies—one for a ladies' parlor and the other a dressing room.

New Jersey State Building.—(Page 315).—This building is a frame structure, with tile roofing. Its dimensions are 82 feet in length by 42 in width, and two stories in height, with attic and observatory. On one side there is a large chimney, costing $800, containing specimens of all the fancy brick manufactured in New Jersey. The entire cost of the building was $8,000.

New Masonic Temple, Philadelphia.—(Page 281).—Is situate northeast corner Broad and Filbert streets. The corner-stone was laid June 24, 1868, and was dedicated to the brethren of the order, September 26, 1873. The building is 250 feet long by 150 feet wide, in style of the Norman school, two stories and entresol, with pinnacles and towers. Main tower 240 feet from the base, foundation 31 feet below the level of the street. The cost of building the Temple was $1,540,000.

New Post Office, Boston.—(Page 131).—The corner-stone was laid on the 16th of October, 1871. Our sketch shows the post office as it is, it has a front of over two hundred feet on Devonshire street, occupying the whole square between Milk and Water streets, and it is, sooner or later, to be extended to Congress street. The government has never before owned the building in which the Boston post office was located. The upper stories of the new post office are occupied by the sub-treasury. The building was completed and occupied early in 1875. The entire cost to the government exceeded three million dollars.

New Post Office, Philadelphia.—(Page 291).—This building, now in course of erection, is to occupy the entire space on the west side of Ninth street, from Chestnut to Market streets. The building will probably cost $8,000,000.

New City Buildings, Philadelphia.—(Page 285).—These buildings are situated on Penn Square. They cover an area of nearly $4\frac{1}{2}$ acres, and consist of one building, surrounding an interior court yard. The north and south fronts measure 470 feet; the east and west $486\frac{1}{2}$ feet in their extreme length.

New York State Building.—(Page 83).—Is 30x60 feet, with spacious square bays in each end, which extend to roof, while a portico 136 wide extends across street front. The first floor contains two rooms, one for ladies and one for gentlemen, with retiring and private consultation rooms, etc. In the hall a winding stair case ascends to second floor, which contains two parlors and several private apartments. From this floor the staircase continues to attic floor, thence to the cupola. The interior is treated in soft gay colors, and with its many irregular features, ranks among the handsomest structures of its size on the ground. Messrs. Croff & Camp, of Saratoga, N. Y., were the architects.

Ohio State Building.—(Page 209.)—It is the most substantial of the State buildings. It is built of sandstone, furnished by the proprietors of the various quarries in Ohio. Some of the stones are very beautiful, and the colors are tastefully blended together. Each course of stone is from a different quarry, and twenty-one quarries are represented in the like number of layers from the ground to the eaves. The building is two stories, with high roof. It is 60 feet wide and 58 feet deep, including the front porch. A verandah 12 feet wide runs on each side and in rear of the building, that on the east being covered with a porch without columns—the other porches having supporting columns. Old Independence Bell.—(P. 277.)

—The bell, originally cast in England in 1751, at a cost of one hundred pounds sterling, was ordered to be of 2,000 pounds weight. Before it was properly hung it was cracked by a stroke of the clapper to try the sound, and was recast by Fars & Stow of Philadelphia. It was hung again in June, 1753. It contains the following inscription: "By order of the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania, for the State House in the City of Philadelphia, 1752;" also, "Proclaim Liberty throughout all the land, and unto all the inhabitants thereof." The most important event connected with the bell is, that it rang to proclaim the birth of a nation, and the freedom of the American people from British oppression. It was broken in ringing for a fire.

Pennsylvania Commissioners' Building.—(Page 197.)—It is a wooden gothic building, 98 by 55 feet. It is surrounded by a tasteful piazza, six feet wide, and is ornamented with a central tower, flanked on each side by two smaller octagonal towers. The height to the eaves is 22 feet, to the peak of the roof 39 feet, and to the top of the central tower 65 feet. The main hall is 30 by 50 feet, on the right of which are two rooms 20 by 20 feet each, intended for ladies' and gentlemen's parlors, beautifully fitted up, and having dressing rooms and other conveniences attached. On the left are two committee-rooms, 20 by 27 feet. The State of Pennsylvania appropriated $15,000 for its erection. It is the headquarters of the Pennsylvania State Commission.

Penn's Treaty with the Indians.

—(Page 271.)—Although historians differ as to the precise locality where this treaty took place, it is pretty generally conceded to have occurred under the great elm tree at Shakamaxon, in the vicinity of Philadelphia, in the year 1682. This treaty was never broken for a period of forty or fifty years, and, during all that time the scalping knife and tomahawk was sheathed in peace with the white men of Penn's treaty.

Photograph Art Studio.—(Page 259.)—It is a very handsome structure of wood and plaster, and is of a highly decorative style of architecture. It is one story high, situated on a terrace three feet above grade. The front portion of the building is reached by a wide stairway, and comprises a wide vestibule and reception-room, and on each of the latter a gallery 22 feet square, for the exhibition of photographs. There are public and private offices, dressing-rooms for ladies and gentlemen, and all the appurtenances of a first-class photographic gallery on a large scale.

MICHIGAN STATE BUILDING, CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION, PHILADELPHIA.

ESTABLISHED 1836.

E. DAMAI,
FASHIONABLE HATTER,
FINE GOODS. LOW PRICES.
No. 143 Arch Street, PHILADELPHIA.

Rhode Island State Building.—(P. 331.)—Is 21 by 42 feet, with an addition to the rear of 6½ feet by 19 feet, and an open porch in front 6 feet by 14 feet. There are in the building ladies' and gentlemen's waiting rooms, and a luggage room in the rear of entrance vestibule. It is built of solid timber, the frame-work showing on the outside. The roof is covered with Pennsylvania black slate. The interior is very plain, the rooms being sheathed with narrow boards, the joints running horizontally. The same material shows both inside and outside. No plaster has been used.

Shoe and Leather Building.—Its size is 160 feet wide and 314 feet deep. In shape the building forms a parallelogram. The materials of its construction are wood, glass, and iron, and the style of architecture strictly American. The interior of the building presents an open space 256 feet long and 160 feet wide. The roof is supported by columns 16 feet apart. The central section being a curve 80 feet wide of the Howe truss pattern, over which is a Louvre ventilator 20 feet wide, and running the entire length of the building, and 59 feet above the ground. The flag-staffs are 80 feet high, and the pavilions respectively 20 and 30 feet in height.

Spanish Building.—(Page 297.)—Is a handsome structure, built in an octagonal form, 50 feet in diameter. It is occupied as the headquarters of the Spanish engineers.

Swedish School House.—(P. 255.)—This building was erected by the government of Sweden. It is composed entirely of wood, either polished or oiled, and was brought from Sweden prepared to be put together upon the grounds. The most singular part of it is that it is impossible, on the exterior, to discover a nail or screw. The boards are beveled and so joined together that no seams are visible. It is intended to keep school there during the summer; genuine Swedish youths of both sexes, with teachers, will be brought over for that purpose.

The Old Elm (p. 173) was one of the chief objects of interest in Boston Common. This great tree was certainly the oldest known tree in New England. It was large enough to find a place on the map engraved in 1722, and on the branch broken off by the gale of 1860 could be easily counted nearly two hundred rings. It is surmised that the supposed witch, Ann Hibbens, was hanged upon it in 1656, and if so it could hardly have been less than twenty-six years old, which would make Old Elm as old as the town of Boston. There was an iron fence put around the tree in 1854. Great care was taken to preserve it, but the high wind of Feb. 15, 1876, blew down the old landmark. Hundreds of relic-seekers flocked to the Common to secure a piece of the old tree, and in a short time it was carried away root and branch. In April, 1876, there was another elm planted on the spot of the Old Elm, and is called the Centennial Elm.

The Washington Elm, Cambridge.—(P. 155.)—Not far from the college grounds stands one of the few famous trees of the country—the Washington Elm—the only known survivor of the ancient forest that originally covered all this part of Cambridge. It was under this tree that General George Washington took command of the Continental army, on the morning of July 3, 1775. A neat fence surrounds this giant of the ancient forests, and an inscription commemorates the important event which was the most interesting in its centuries of existence.

United States Government Building.—(P. 239.)—It is 480 feet long by 346 feet wide, and covers more than two acres. It exhibits a complete display of the progress of the government in the manufacture of arms, ammunition, and accoutrements since the earliest days of the Republic until the present time. In fact, in this building will be revealed to the visitor the practical working of nearly every department of the government, together with illustrations and comparisons of former times with the present, and a large collection of treasures and curiosities from both sea and land.

United States Post Hospital.—(Page 323.)—This building contains an exhibition of the medical department of the army, the apparatus and supplies employed in the care of sick and wounded soldiers. It is 125 feet front, surrounded by a piazza 10 feet wide, and consists of a central administration building with two wings, in each of which is a ward 45 by 25 feet, intended for twelve beds. All the other rooms are occupied with the exhibition of army and navy hospital supplies of every description.

Women's Pavilion.—(Page 113.)—This pretty structure has on display only articles which are the result of feminine skill and labor. The building covers an area of 30,000 square feet; it is of wood, roofed over by segmented trusses. It exhibits a nave and transept each 192 feet long and 64 feet wide, terminating in porches 8 by 32 feet. Four pavilions, each 48 feet square, occupy the angles formed by the nave and transept. The centre of the structure rises 25 feet above the exterior portions, and terminates with a cupola and lantern 90 feet from the ground. The entire superstructure rests on the exterior walls and four interior supporting columns. It contains, in addition to space for exhibits, toilet and reception rooms. The whole cost of the building, including internal decorations, is about $40,000. Built by money raised by women.

West Virginia State Building.—(Page 327.)—Has a front of 59 feet, and a depth of 90 feet, which includes an exhibition room in the rear for the special display of the products of West Virginia. The building containing four rooms. Two on the first floor intended for business purposes and the reception of visitors, and two on the second floor for the accommodation of ladies. It is built entirely of wood, representing nine different varieties from the State of West Virginia.

J. BRADLEY & CO.,

MANUFACTURERS AND PROPRIETORS,

616 Sansom Street, Philadelphia.

NATIONAL ODORLESS EXCAVATING APPARATUS,

Patented January 12th, 1875, April 25th, 1876, claim for their Apparatus:

First.—ECONOMY; as we furnish a complete Apparatus for a less price than the cost of Hose used by any other apparatus, being simple in construction, and requiring but two men to work it.

Second.—CONVENIENCE; as the Apparatus is transported on any ordinary Wagon, Dray, or Truck, and the operation of Cleaning a Well or Sink is done in the yard in the day time, and there is nothing on the street to indicate that such operation is going on; consequently no one is annoyed by it.

Third.—RAPIDITY; the work can be done in half of the time of any other method, barrels having been frequently filled in half a minute.

Fourth.—UTILITY; the filled barrels can be transported by Wagon, Railroad, or Boat, emptied and returned.

This Apparatus is for sale to all parties; no Royalty.

THE HOME OF WASHINGTON'S ANCESTORS.

Entered according to Act of Congress in the year 1868, by Frederick Hale, in the Clerk's Office of the District Court of the U. S. for the Southern District of New York.

THE MANOR HOUSE, SULGRAVE, NORTHAMPTONSHIRE, which was held of the Priory of St. Andrew, was surrendered to the Crown upon the dissolution of the Monasteries, and in the 30th of Henry VIII. (1529), it was granted to Lawrence Washington, gent of Northampton. Robert Washington, his son and heir, conjointly with his eldest son Lawrence, sold the manor in 1610 to Lawrence Makepeace, gent of the Inner Temple, London. Lawrence Washington, after the sale of his estate, retired to Brington, where he died; and his second son, John Washington, emigrated to America about the middle of the 17th century, and was grandfather of the great American patriot and father of his country, George Washington.

[Extract from WM. W. NELLAN, & Co.'s History of Northamptonshire.]
To be obtained from the Centennial Photographic Co., in the Exhibition Building.
